Poetry.
Sun and Rain.
A young wife stood at the lattice-pane,
In a study sad and brown,
Watching the dreary, ceaseless rain
Steadily pouring down.
It dripped, drip, drip,
It kept on its tiresome play;
And the poor little woman sigh'd: "Ah, me!
What a wretched, weary day!"
An eager hand at the door,
A step as of one in haste,
A kiss on her lips once more,
And an arm around her waist;
Went her little heart, grating and gay,
As she thought, with a smile, "Well, after all,
It isn't so dull a day!"
Forgot was the splashing rain,
And the lowering skies above,
For the sunbeam was lighted again
By the blessed sun of love;
"Love, love, love!"
Ran the little wife's merriment of day:
"Without it, may threaten and frown it if will;
Within, what a golden day!"

Miscellaneous.
Pulpit Signals.
The need of some means of prompt communication between the clergyman
in the pulpit and the sexton at the other end of the church, has long been apparent. There are constantly arising contingencies in which it is absolutely necessary that the minister should communicate with the sexton. For example, the minister needs a glass of water, or, in case of Mr. Talmage, a lotter for a spained leg. He needs to ask a question of a vestryman, or he wants to have a warden waked up, or a crying lady removed. In these circumstances the aid of the sexton is indispensable, but as that functionary is at the extreme end of the church, and is, perhaps, absorbed in watching a few fall of boys who are on the point of breaking into open disorder, his attention cannot be attracted. Many plans have been devised by ingenious ministers to establish connection with the sexton.

There was the Rev. Mr. Sanford, of Chelsea, who invented a code of handkerchief signals. One wave of the handkerchief meant that he wanted water. Holding one end of the handkerchief in his teeth and the other in his right hand meant "shake a boy on the right side of the church," and waiving the handkerchief three times around his head was an order to the sexton to poke the fire. The system was ingenious, but it did not work for the sexton could not understand the signals, and the congregation assumed that the minister was engaged in a flirtation with the soprano of the choir, and that his signals were made for her benefit.

The result was a scandal and an ecclesiastical snarl, the remembrance of which is doubtless still fresh in the reader's memory.

There was the Methodist minister of Oshkosh, who agreed with his sexton that whenever he exclaimed "O, my brethren!" a glass of water should be brought to him. This was for a time quite successful, but one day the minister exchanged pulpits with a Baptist friend, without warning the sexton that the Baptist knew nothing of the signal code. It so happened that the Baptist preacher began seventy-three sentences
by actual count, with the exclamation,
"O, my brethren!" and every time the sexton brought him a glass of water.
Of course this attracted attention, and excited the minister's indignation, who regarded it as a sacrilege on his deacon's part to interrupt his discourse. His intentional fondness for water. Still, it is doubtful if he was excusable for throwing the seventy-third glass with its contents at the head of the sexton, and certainly his conduct in kicking the latter down the pulpit stairs admits of no justification. The sexton, of course, felt himself outraged, and ever afterward refused to answer any signal that was made to him from the pulpit.

The Rev. Mr. Carr, a popular Presbyterian minister in the city of New York, invented a system of signaling his sexton, which had very marked merits. He caused a wire to be run from the pulpit to the sexton's pew,
where it connected with a pair of leather straps which clamped the sexton's leg. When the wire was pulled the clamps would gently pinch the sexton's leg. The wire ran underneath the flooring of the meeting-house, and the clamps were concealed under the sexton's seat, so that no one except the minister and the sexton was aware of the existence of the sacred telegraph.

Quincy High School.

The graduating exercises of the Quincy High School took place at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, and although the weather was very warm a large crowd was present to enjoy the exercises, which consisted of music, addresses, readings and declamations. The hall was very tastefully decorated with flowers and plants, and on the wall in rear of the stage was a semi-circle of flowers forming the class motto, "A Toutle Force." Q. H. S., 1881, were also in flower. The class this year was an unusually large one comprising twenty-two scholars, seventeen misses and five masters.

The salutatory was made by Miss Mary W. Holden, and the valedictory by Miss Mary E. Cram. Mr. Edwin W. Marsh presented the diplomas to the following young ladies and gentlemen, who were the graduates:—
Joanna Louise Callahan,

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS. The class of 1881 of the Quincy Grammar Schools held its graduating exercises at the Town Hall on Thursday afternoon. The order of exercises consisted of vocal and instrumental music, essays, recitations, compositions, gymnastics, sight-reading, concert-reading, declamation and presentation of certificates. The following are the names of the graduates:—
Adams School.—Mervine E. Dickey, Mary E. McCarthy, Eliza S. Danie, Perry Lawton, Alice Mundy, Lizzie A. Evans, Mary J. Flowers, Annie T. Conner, Mary E. Dauba, Annie T. Wendell, David A. Morrissey, Mary J. Davis, Lizzie G. Gibson.
Coddington School.—Clara A. Vezio, George T. Westland, Evert W. Adams, Mary E. Callaghan, James H. Bent, Grace H. Adams, John H. Bent, Joseph T. F. Burrell, Lizzie A. Garrity, Edward T. House, Frank C. Follett.
Quincy School.—Daniel Sullivan, Mary T. Shields, Flora H. Davis.
Washington School.—Michael T. Sullivan, George P. Mead, Warren L. Souther, George N. Shepherd, Lulu H. Todd.

WILSON SCHOOL.—Leonard L. Elden, Ada Enderle, John B. Enderle, Mary F. O'Connell, Mabel G. Gragg, Napoleon Nadeau, George T. Linton.
WALTON SCHOOL.—Justin F. Emery, Florence E. Edgerton.

ACCIDENT. A lady who has been keeping house for Mr. John Arnold for some time, fell while getting out of Mr. Arnold's carriage at Downing Landing, on Thursday afternoon of last week, and broke her hip bone. At the time of the accident a physician was telegraphed for in Hingham, but as he could render no material aid, a mattress was procured and placed in the carriage and she was brought to Quincy. On Saturday she was conveyed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

THE "HORRIBLES." This noted procession starts from Thomas' shipyard at Quincy Point, at 4.30 P.M. of July morning, and will proceed over the following route: From Quincy Point bridge, through Washington, to South street; from South street to S. F. Newcomb's store; from South street to Washington street; from Washington street to Hancock street; from Hancock street to Elm street; from Elm street to Elm street; and then to the Point.

A WORD OF CAUTION. It will be seen by referring to another column, that the Board of Engineers would remind our citizens to use as much care as possible with fire-crackers and other fireworks to avoid the danger of a conflagration. The bells on the Tiger and Granite houses are not to be rung on Monday unless there should be a fire.

SPIRAL DISTRESS. A valuable horse belonging to Mr. Charles N. Baxter was taken with the spiral disease on Wednesday, on the premises of Mr. James Baxter, Adams street, where Mr. C. N. Baxter was working. He was lashed to some plank, while he was placed on wheels and carried home on Friday morning.

DIPHTHERIA is reported quite prevalent at Brookline. One of the schools was closed last week on account of the malignant character of the cases occurring in its vicinity.

THE COMET. The comet which has been attracting so much attention and occasioned so much confusion among astronomers, not only as to its identity, but also, and more especially, as to whom belongs the honor of having first observed it. Some say that it was first discovered by Dr. Gould, others that it was seen by Dom Pedro, of Brazil. We think that it will be found that the honor of being the first to notice the heavenly visitor belongs to neither of these distinguished personages, but to Mrs. Mobilia Jones of Braintree. Mrs. Jones saw the comet on the morning it was first seen by any body, and two hours before Dr. Gould or Dom Pedro was out of bed. She communicated the fact to Mr. Jones who was then in a partially comatose and in a very weak condition, and about 7 o'clock the same morning she started to us that she had seen it moving about 2 o'clock. This statement has been made in the presence of no one but ourselves, and there, fore, be true; and if true, it corroborates in every particular the general statement made in the presence of Mr. Jones at an early hour that morning. These are the facts, and as far as we have been able to glean them. Therefore, there can be no doubt at all but that the first who saw the comet, was Mrs. Jones, and that it will henceforth, as it is proper that it should be, known as Jones's comet.—Braintree Observer.

Those of our readers who have used tarred paper and other articles to prevent the canker worms from injuring their trees, should see that they are removed during the summer months. The bark on some trees under the paper has been found to be dead. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Mrs. Ann Combs, mother of Mr. Francis Locke of Gloucester, a former resident of this town, is now visiting her mother, Mrs. George J. Jones. This venerable lady has reached her eighty-seventh year and is in the enjoyment of good health, and for one of her age is uncommonly smart and active.

Prof. Bush who has been absent a week or ten days serving on the committee of examination for the University at Middlebury, Conn., is again at home. The auctioneer will also sell, at five o'clock the same afternoon, eight acres of valuable upland and meadow, adjoining said farm. The meadow is covered with cranberry vines, and is good property for improvement or investment.

On the fourth page will be found a poem for "Independence Day," from the pen of the venerable F. M. Adlington. This gentleman has been a contributor to the columns of the PATRIOT for more than thirty years. We were sorry to learn that he had been confined to his bed by sickness, but hope that he is now restored to good health, and trust that he may be spared many years, with intellect clear and bright, to enjoy many more of the glorious "Fourth's" to which he has so often lent his aid.

The Hingham Journal says that so far the season at Nantasket has been nearly a failure. One house which last year at this time had eight or nine thousand dollars in hand, can hardly make as many hundreds. Expenses, however, are about as heavy as usual, as landlords must keep help and be prepared for the rush when it comes.

Quincy Point Items.

Monday evening a rehearsal by the "Fourth of July Chorus" took place at the residence of Mr. W. T. Barry; the interest shown by the members is very gratifying and it is safe to predict some excellent singing in the class Monday.

The boys have been practicing running and jumping, on Mr. Graham's track, during the week, preparatory to entering the athletic sports on the Fourth.

The Quincy Point Temperance Association held its last regular meeting of the season Wednesday evening. The audience was rather a small one owing to the attraction at the Town Hall. The exercises were very interesting and comprised readings by Mrs. W. T. Barry, Messrs. J. Federhen 3d, Revs. G. H. Hastings and G. B. Lawton, and H. M. Federhen; the "paper" by editor H. A. Vaille; a solo by Mr. W. T. Barry, and singing by the audience. The meeting adjourned to the first Wednesday evening in September.

Master John Francis Harlow of the Point, was the recipient of two books given as prizes to the scholar who received the most "approbation cards," and who was the most proficient in "classics," in the fourth class of the Adams Academy. We congratulate him upon his well deserved success.

The Fourth of July Committee met at the residence of Mr. H. M. Federhen Thursday evening, and made the final arrangements for the day's proceedings. The chairman of the several sub-committees reported progress, and it is evident the exercises of the day will be a success, provided the weather is fine. The fireworks will consist of eight large set pieces and numerous rockets, bombs and colored fires. The indications for a large turnout in the "horribles" were very promising, and prizes amounting to twenty-five dollars, will be awarded to those features in the procession which the committee deems most deserving. The entries for the athletics will be numerous enough to insure a spirited contest; the exercises in the C. U. Church will be very interesting, and the explosion of dynamite will be an attractive feature. The special police appointed by the Selectmen will preserve the best of order, and the committee will use its best endeavor to have the day celebrated in a manner that will be credit to Quincy Point. The best way to reach Mr. Graham's track, is through the Washington School yard. The place of meeting for the "horribles" will be at Thomas' shipyard instead of at Mr. H. M. Federhen's.

On the morning of the Fourth the Vulture Engine Company will place a flag-staff thirty-five feet long, on their engine house and will unfurl a beautiful flag seven and a half feet by twelve feet.

There was a race between Mr. J. Q. Adams' two yachts, the Dandelion and Imp, Thursday, over the club course. The former was victorious by about three minutes.

The large hall of the Washington School was filled to its utmost capacity Tuesday afternoon, by relatives and friends of the children, who came to witness the closing exercises by the scholars. The room was beautifully decorated with flowers arranged in a very pleasing manner, but the children were the most gratifying sight of all, as they gathered in the hall with their eyes sparkling and smiles on their faces, plainly showing the event they took in their school. Miss Eva Hall delivered a patriotic address, and about thirty other scholars took part in the exercises, which consisted of a reading and declamations and singing. The whole affair was a credit to the school.

The Sabbath school connected with the Christian Union Church, is making arrangements to have its annual picnic to the place which will probably be decided upon tomorrow.

We are enjoying the advantages of a watered street; it is very pleasant to be rid of the dust nuisance which has troubled us for so many years. Mr. Pevery is doing the work very well, considering the many disadvantages he has labored under. We hope to see the road well watered for the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. John Federhen have been visiting relatives in Chester, N. H., during the week.

Mrs. I. F. Hall and family were at the Point last week; Mr. Hall is in Virginia.

The mackerel have made their appearance in Weymouth River.

Mr. F. H. Smith will be Chief Marshal of the procession of "horribles."

We expect the editors of the PATRIOT to witness our celebration.

Mr. Sproul of the Herald has been to the Thomas' shipyard, and has taken as much paper he represents.

There will be no preaching service at the Baptist Chapel next Sunday afternoon. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at three o'clock at the shipyard, in Braintree, where Mr. Pevery is doing the work very well, considering the many disadvantages he has labored under. We hope to see the road well watered for the Fourth.

Adams Academy.

The graduating exercises of the first class took place at the Academy in this town, on Tuesday morning last, in the presence of many residents and friends. On the platform were Dr. William Everett, Hon. Chas. F. Adams, President Gilman of Baltimore, Henry A. Johnson, Esq., of Braintree, Rev. E. A. Perry and Chas. H. Porter, Esq., of Quincy. Amid the fragrance of the flowers the exercises passed off with great satisfaction.

In opening the exercises the Divine blessing was invoked by the Rev. E. A. Perry, and then the salutatory address in Latin was delivered by Arthur Keith of Quincy. Dr. Everett next took advantage of the moment to speak of the condition and aims of the school. He said those who teach in an old-fashioned classical school stand with their backs to the wall, so it is made to appear, deifying all those who would propose changes. Now the difference between an old-fashioned school and a new-fashioned school is, that in the old-fashioned school you go and get lessons and mental discipline, and in the new-fashioned school, where they are taught, are taught to get lessons and mental discipline, and in the new-fashioned school, where they are taught, are taught to get lessons and mental discipline.

The visiting Knights then formed in line and marched through Court street and Shirley Square to Masonic Hall, on Main street, where a nice collation was partaken of, served by the Plymouth Lodge. The line of march was then again taken up, and after passing through the principal streets to the green, carriages were then taken to the students' rooms, where they and their guests partook of dinner. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in social intercourse and enjoying the beautiful scenery which surrounded that locality.

In the evening a grand illumination was given, also a dance. The Weymouth Sir Knights arrived home in the "sma'w" hours next morning.

Has the Legislature passed a law in regard to "screens" in places where liquor is sold? If so, our able lawyers should not, while in court, ask for time to examine the statutes.

On Tuesday evening, the Hon. Hon. John Foster Gray, Esq., reduced his high honor to the high honor in Quincy the morning of the 4th. As it will be difficult for the most rapid shorthand writer to take notes of the same, the editor or reporters of the local newspapers can have a copy by making application to the honorable gentleman.

Bicycles are all the rage now at the Landing. The large purse offered for the best rider the coming 4th at the Fair Grounds has been an inducement for many to purchase that kind of an animal. One new patron of Front street, while practicing last Monday evening, made slow, but, as he thought, steady progress, when he was suddenly leading to Broad street, the thing he, the best of him, as it came to him, after he, the rider, sprang a short time in the deep dust, he concluded to lead the "hoss" home.

Bour's large barge, the "Lady Washington," was, at an early hour, filled with members from Delphi Lodge, to visit friends in Quincy, on Thursday evening.

After the prizes were delivered, President Gilman of John Hopkins University, Baltimore, was introduced. He said the Quincy and the Quincy schools were watched, and their methods considered all over the country. Quincy had come to be looked upon as an educational centre, and he was glad to have this opportunity of witnessing some of its results.

Chas. H. Porter, Esq., made a very pleasant congratulatory address, expressing his entire satisfaction with the way the school is conducted. Mr. Henry A. Johnson of Braintree also spoke. He gave some very practical counsel to the boys just graduating and to those remaining in the school. He urged upon them to be content with no condition really beneath them, to accept no situation unworthy of them, but to work and persevere in the pursuit of the highest attainments.

The following named are members of the graduating class—Franklin Swift Billings, Woodstock, Vt.; Frederick Harris Briggs, Springfield; Charles Carroll Cobb, Bridgewater; Henry Branton Cox, New York; Frederick Adrian Delano, Newburg, N. The Old Colony Commandery of Knight Templars celebrated St. John's day by an excursion to the good old town of Plymouth on Friday, accompanied with their ladies. The Sir Knights to the number of 50, S. B. Dickerman eminent commander, in full regalia, assembled at Masonic Hall in Abington, accompanied by the brass band, and at 8:30 A. M. took the train for Plymouth. There they received a delegation from South Shore Commandery of Weymouth, W. S. Wallace, Esq., of Weymouth, numbering forty with ladies, who were their guests for the day. Arriving at the station, they took carriages and were driven to the Clifford House.

The visiting Knights then formed in line and marched through Court street and Shirley Square to Masonic Hall, on Main street, where a nice collation was partaken of, served by the Plymouth Lodge. The line of march was then again taken up, and after passing through the principal streets to the green, carriages were then taken to the students' rooms, where they and their guests partook of dinner. Massachusetts Press Excursion.
With the summer months has come and passed the twelfth annual excursion of the Press Association of Massachusetts. The trip this season was to the principal beaches of New Hampshire and Maine, including stops at the cities of Portland and Bangor. During the twelve years of the association, it has travelled over a considerable territory, and seen nearly all the points of interest for hundreds of miles about this state. It has been to Canada, and up the Saguenay, on the north, to Washington, Mount Vernon and Richmond, on the south.
It has travelled to Niagara
through Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and visited such places as Saratoga, the White Mountains, Watkins' Glen, Thousend Islands, Lake Champlain, Delaware Water Gap, and the coal mines of Pennsylvania.

EN ROUTE.
The party this year, though smaller than usual, numbered forty and fifty persons, and represented some of the best papers in the state. We left Boston by the Eastern Railroad at 12.30 on Monday, the 20th of June. To the courtesy of the general passenger agent of the road, Mr. L. Lucius Tuttle, is due our thanks for the nice new cars which were placed at our disposal, and also for the excellent guides, Mr. Edward Sands, who accompanied us on the entire trip, and looked after our baggage, made the best connections possible, and, besides, kept the whole party in good humor.
Portland, the end of the first day's journey, was reached in a few hours,
and at the depot we were met by Mr.
Eliot, of the Portland Times, and members of the press of Portland. We here took carriages for the Falmouth Hotel, kept by O. W. Shaw & Son. The hotel is one of the best in the city, and everything was done for the comfort of the guests. After tea we walked about the city, enjoying the view from the eastern and western promenades, and also the fine residences and public buildings of the city.
Tuesday morning, by invitation of the Portland press, the excursionists embarked on the steamer "Gazelle," for a sail along the beautiful coast of Casco Bay, or Portland Harbor. We were accompanied by several of the leading public men and members of the press of Portland. There are over a hundred islands in the bay, and most of them, quite unlike the islands in Boston, are covered with trees. The summer hotels on the islands are numerous and large.
Returning from the sail, we took dinner, and at 12 o'clock left Portland for Bangor. The road lay along the Kennebec river for several miles, and passed through Augusta and other places of interest. The banks of the river were lined with ice houses of large proportions, and thousands of logs were on the sides of the river. The ride was a long one, being 120 miles, and when we reached Bangor it was raining hard.
We were here quartered at the Bangor House, kept by F. O. Beals. The rain having ceased, we were enabled to walk about the city. Some of the residences were very beautiful, especially on Broadway.
DOWN THE PENOBSCOT.
At eight o'clock on Wednesday morning, the party left Bangor by the steamer "City of Bangor," for a sail of seventy miles, to Bar Harbor, Mount Desert. The first part of the sail was down the beautiful Penobscot river.
Fish objects were presented to the eye at all points, and the scenery was excellent. A short stop was made at the historic town of Castine. Soon after leaving the river the mountains of Mount Desert could be seen in the far distance, but it was a number of hours before we reached the islands. South West Harbor was the first landing made at the island, and during the short stop a few of the party visited a lobster canning factory near by, and will always remember how politely our questions were answered. President Eliot, of Harvard College fame is building a beautiful summer residence at this harbor.
Leaving South West Harbor, we steamed toward Bar Harbor, and after a sail of a little over an hour reached our destination, which will be spoken of in the next article. The sail was a delightful one, and although we were exposed to the ocean at some points, the sea was remarkably calm. F. F. P.

THAYER ACADEMY. The graduating exercises of the senior class of the Thayer Academy, Braintree, took place at the large hall in that building on Monday last. A large audience composed of the people of Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph and Quincy was present to enjoy the interesting exercises. Four young ladies from this town were among the graduates:—Miss Jeannie W. Anderson, Miss Sibylla A.
Pfaffman, Miss Maud C. Swallow and Miss Annie T. Zeigler. At the conclusion of the graduating exercises, Asa T. French, Esq., one of the Board of Trustees, addressed the class in a very eloquent and pleasing manner, and he concluded, presented the diplomas to the graduates. Rev. Mr. Thayer of Boston then made a short address, and at the conclusion, Rev. Mr. Labare offered a prayer.
In the afternoon the graduating class
and their friends had a very enjoyable time. A beautiful collation was served in one of the rooms, which was particularly with a relish. The lovers of the music of Monk's orchestra for a few hours. The occasion was one of unalloyed pleasure, and will long be remembered by all.

The Latest Revision
Of the Christian Scriptures, or the New Testament.
We may well be glad and grateful for the wide interest excited in the sacred Book, by the recent revision of the New Testament.
We confidently may trust that in the wise and good providence of God it will result in the advancement of the greater glory and the setting forward of the salvation of the world. There have been a number of revised versions of the New Testament since the invention of the art of printing in the year 1450, but not one of them roused such universal interest as this one just brought before the public, which originated in the convocation of Canterbury in Old England. In this country in one week one million copies were sold.
Two houses in New York sold 300,000 volumes in one day.
This New Testament must bear in mind is not a new translation but a revision consisting of corrections made in the Greek text from which our old New Testament was translated in 1611 by the royal command of King James,
and also in this common or authorized version.
Seventy-nine scholars composed the revising committee, fifty-two English and Scotch and twenty-seven Americans. There was one English and one Unitarian scholar on the committee, so that we had, and very properly, the scholarship of the liberal as well as the conservative side of theology enlisted in the great work which took five years to perform.
Time alone must show whether this new version will take the place of the version nearly 300 years old, or only take a place by the side of the old one,
so that the two versions will be mutually helpful and enable us sooner to arrive at a knowledge of the truth with respect to some facts of minor importance and interest. I say facts of minor importance, because the things of chief value
—the radical doctrines of the historic church and the plain duties of religion
—the revision does not disturb in the remotest degree. Your correspondent "P." offers some observations on the new version which are in many respects very valuable, and which are very judiciously made. His statements are clear and comprehensive. But though "P." writes in a spirit of sincerity and fairness, some of his views and statements are open to criticism.
He says correctly that "Hades is no longer rendered hell in the new version
but remains in its original Greek form," except where it is rendered grave in the authorized version. But in the new version is death. "P." sees a significant change in this change, and he thinks that the change is for the better.
This change is for the better in a theological sense and refers to confirm his judgment to the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. In what consists the improvement? Is it not as bad to be tormented in Hades as in hell? Is the place or condition meant and not the name of it which is the principal consideration.
Let us suppose "P." is a Christian pastor and one of his flock reads this parable of the Saviour and says, "P."
"What is Hades where this had rich man was tormented? What is the significance of this old name Hades?
What will Mr. "P." answer?"
"P." finds the exact state of the case
when he says that in the common version the word Hades occurs twenty-three times and that hell occurs thirteen times.
What significance does "P." see in these figures 23 in the old and 13 in the new version?
I infer that the true significance on this point is this: that it is more agreeable to the word which occurs twenty-three times and that hell occurs thirteen times.

Mass. Press Excursion—11.
RAIL HARBOUR, MOUNT DESERT.
This fashionable summer resort
was reached by the Press Association
on Wednesday evening, and the party were conveyed by backboards to the West End Hotel, one of the very best hotels the excursionists have visited.
Its proprietors, O. M. Shaw & Son, are also the proprietors of the Fairmount House, Portland, where we stopped the first night. Bar Harbor is situated on a plateau extending from the base of Green Mountain to the sea, and from its many beautiful and costly residences
built and being built by the wealthy men of Boston, New York and other places, is soon destined to rival the great watering places of Newport and Saratoga. Mr. J. M. Sears of Boston, is having built on the shore a cottage
which when completed will cost $300, 000. We were astonished to find so many fine residences at this resort.
The houses were beautifully painted,
and the red roofs among the green foliage, presented a charming appear- ance. In the village there are ten or twelve large, first-class hotels, and twice as many large boarding houses.
In the evening the party gathered around the wood fire in the parlor,
and enjoyed themselves with jokes and singing.
UP GREEN MOUNTAIN.
Thursday morning most of the ex- cursionists took backboards, the fa- vorite wagon at this place, for the ascent of Green Mountain. The distance was four miles, and the road to the summit
very rough, so that many preferred
to walk the greater part of the distance.
When the summit was reached we found a little, old house, where we registered our names. The view from this great height, 1536 feet, was superb.
At the base on one side could be seen
the village of Bar Harbor, the Porcu- pine islands which protect the harbor,
and beyond a wide expanse of water.
On another side the broad ocean; on another the smooth waters of Eagle
lake which supplies the village with pure water, and on another side ranges of mountains. The day was comfort- ably warm and overcast. The views were not as good as the preceding days.
According to the succeeding days, we descended the mountain, we visited
Eagle lake, and returned to the West
End where we found an excellent din- ner in waiting.
OTTER CLIFFS.
In the afternoon we went to Otter
Cliffs, five or six miles distant. The ride was delightful; the road passing through a deep gorge between Green
and Newport mountains, the over- hanging branches making it cool,
and the mystery of the lobster can- ning factory as on our previous landing here, and was careful to keep out of sight of the pretty damsels em- ployed. One other landing was made at Rockland. The whole sail will always be remembered with pleasure.
The route was between the islands and
the mainland, and was very attractive,
the numerous islands presenting beau- tiful scenery. At the usual hour a splendid dinner was served on the boat.
The sail was long and delightful, and it was after six in the evening when we reached the city of Portland. At the landing we were met by Mrs. Ellwell and daughter, and each member of the excursionists was presented by them
with a beautiful button-hole bouquet.
TO PORTSMOUTH AND NEWCASTLE.
We found a train of the Eastern rail- road awaiting us at the landing, and we were soon "all aboard," and off for Portsmouth. At the first stopping, one of the party, who had noticed felt like a fish out of water, was soon out of the car gathering his favorite flow- ers. This man had a great fondness for these flowers, and when travelling on the land was sure to gather a large bouquet at each station and distribute among the party. Ar- riving at Portsmouth, we were conveyed by Concord coaches over a three mile
route to the grand hotel at Newcastle, known as the Wentworth House. But it will take another letter to describe this nice place, the ride to the famous Hampton and Rye beaches, the visit to the aquarium and the old Fort Constitu- tion, the grand ball at the Wentworth
House, and the Isles of Shoals.
F. F. F.
ABSENCE OF MIND. An amusing
case of absent mindedness on the part of a fashionable lady in Boston occurred
recently in this city. While in a store on Washington street she purchased a large feather duster and on leaving the store took with her the duster leaving her umbrella with orders that it be sent to her residence. Jones, of her surprise when she recovered her men- tal equilibrium and discovered herself
entering Jordan & Marsh's store with the feather duster carried above her head a-la-sunshade, and everybody start- ed at her as they might have done at a Comanche chieftain.—Peachy Press.

The Celebration on the Fourth.
To the Editors of the Patriot:
I attended the celebration at Quincy Point on the fourth of July and was well pleased. The programme was ex- cellent and well carried out. It was really refreshing to see an old-fashioned celebration.
I suppose it was that some of the descendants of the old patriots were called a spread-eagle celebration. If it was, give us more of them, for the benefit of the rising generation. I have listened to the reading of the immortal declaration a great many times, but I think it was read last Monday a little better than I ever heard it. The singing was excellent.
I am glad they have found out there are some good old tunes and songs.
The oration was just what was needed
celebrating the nation's birthday.
All honor to Quincy Point, may they have a great many more such celebra- tions, and may it become a permanent institution with them. Never let Hall
Columbia and the Star Spangled Banner be forgotten.

Resolutions.
At a meeting of the Young Men's Democratic Association of Quincy, held in the Lyceum Room, Tuesday evening,
July 6th, the following resolutions
were adopted:
WHEREAS, the members of the
Young Men's Democratic Association of Quincy, feeling that the monstrous
crime of the assassination of the Pres- ident of the United States has been at- tended with a crime in the eyes of the people in America in view of the crime as this, and that when a man be- comes President, he represents the whole American people, he stands for the whole Union, he represents order,
peace, and public good will, and that the President, embodied in the majesty
of the Republic, and that the felonious assault strikes all that is patriotic and loyal, all that is manly and moral, all that is truly American in the breasts of 20,000,000 of people. Feeling that there is but one sentiment in the United States to-day of loyalty to the Repub- lic, shame and indignation that it has been assailed in the person of the Pres- ident.
Resolved,—That the members of the
Young Men's Democratic Association of Quincy, express their abhorrence of the dastardly act of the assassin, and denounce it as an outrage against public liberty and an attack on the life of the Republic.
Resolved,—That we, his surviving comrades, will keep him in grateful remembrance for his interest in our order, for his faithfulness to its prin- ciples, and his constant attendance when

The Great Ocean Pier.

On Tuesday last some three or four hundred persons, including a number from Quincy, visited, by invitation, the Great Ocean Pier at Crescent Beach, near Beverly Beach. The party left Boston at 11 o'clock, in one of the company's fine steamers, accompanied by Higgin's Band. After enjoying a fine sail of about fifty minutes, the steamer proceeded to the pier, where the party were landed at the Great Pier, which is 1700 feet long, the longest in the world.

Shortly after landing, the guests were given a collation and were greatly entertained in viewing the attractions of the place. Several admirable buildings serve to break up anything like monotony in the length of the pier; and the cafe at the head, which will accommodate more than four hundred guests, is particularly inviting. All present expressed their satisfaction at the combination of attractions the place affords, and the liberal spirit of enterprise marking everything done by the corporation that has set them forth.

Large numbers of workmen are busily engaged grading and embellishing the grounds at the shore end of the pier. A broad-gauge railroad, at a point near the Pavilion Hotel, is already constructed as far as the Great Ocean Pier, and workmen are busily engaged pushing the construction in the direction of the terminus of the line, which will be near Taft's Hotel, at Point Shirley, in the town of Winthrop. This road, when finished, completed the long-range system the entire length of the beaches on the north shore, from Lynn to Point Shirley. The construction of the pier and railroad has been under the supervision of two of our local engineers, Messrs. Whitman and Breck.

The Boys in Blue.

It was the balmy air last Saturday that made so many wish for a change. How refreshed and thankful we would be for a little deviation in the days of "old Prob" but alas that exhilarating hour was too intense. The Grand Army Boys were wise, they had planned to visit Comrade Rich at Germantown, and there regale themselves with the cool salt air. It was nearly half past seven when the barges "Augusta" and "Willard" required to G. A. R. hall and conveyed the merry party consisting of some fifty or more children.

On their arrival many divested themselves of surplus clothing and prepared for the evening's enjoyment. The first on the programme was a pleasant boat ride on Weymouth Fore river and all who participated received much enjoyment. After a short time in this pleasure the party returned to the house, and on the arrival of the fine music furnished by Messrs. Nightingale and Welch inspired all with a frenzy to dance. A short time on the fantastic floor was immediately succeeded by a march for the dining-room. Mrs. Rich having summoned all to partake of one of her fine chowders. The table was neatly and tastefully spread; there were cakes and pies and other niceties. Immediately following supper, singing was taken up and hardly before knowing it the hour had come for the return home. The excellent time enjoyed at this "camp" will long be remembered by the Union boys of Post 88. For the courtesies shown our reporter, they will please accept his thanks.

ACCIDENT. Last Tuesday evening a carriage belonging to Mr. George Mitchell, in which were two ladies and two children, was run into and one of the wheels taken off by a passing train. The accident was caused by some gentlemen who were trying the speed of their trotters in a very reckless manner. Fortunately no one was injured, but the ladies and children were badly frightened.

This racing through our public streets has become a permanent nuisance, as it endangers life and property, and we hope that it will be stopped before some fearful accident occurs.

NEW ALMSHOUSE. We learn that Quincy will not be cheated out of its new almshouse; but that the work will be commenced at once. The plan drawn by William Parker, Esq., two or three years ago, at the time the town chose a committee to examine other almshouses, have been adopted; and Mr. Parker has the contract to build the same.

We should judge by the plans that it will be a very convenient and durable building, three stories in height, and one well-adapted for the town's needs. The cost is not to exceed $10,000.

REMOVAL. The quarterly reunion of the Rhine Clubs of Massachusetts will be held in Loring Hall, Hingham, on Wednesday next, July 20, at 10.30 A. M. At the evening session Geo. Long will preside.

The following delegates were elected to attend said convention by the Quincy branch: John J. Frederick, Southern, Henry H. Faxon, George Yale, and Thos. Kelly, Eldridge Jay, James E. Tirrell and William S. Leavitt.

CAPTURED. On Tuesday evening Mrs. Martin and her daughter from Milton were riding up Hancock street, at a pretty good gait, when near Mr. W. A. Hodges's house, the horse started to turn down Canal street and making such a short turn capsize the phaeton, throwing out both ladies, but fortunately without injury to either of them. One of the wheels of the carriage was damaged.

FIRE. The alarm of fire on Wednesday morning was caused by the discovery of flames issuing from the roof of the building owned by Mr. William Patton and occupied by N. W. Crocker, harness maker, on Hancock street. The fire was without doubt the work of an incendiary, but by the timely discovery, the villain's plans were frustrated. The damage to the building was trifling.

ENJOYING REST. R. Wm. Watson, proprietor of the Worcester Hotel, has been enjoying a summer retreat on Lake Erie, where he is enjoying rest and recreation, and the invigorating air of the forest.

"Oh, for a lodge in some vast wilderness, Some boundless continuity of shade."

SMASH-UP. As Fairweather's baker cart was passing over the railroad crossing at Quincy Adams station, on Water street, on Thursday afternoon, last, the horse became frightened at the lowering of the gate and starting to run, capsize the wagon, damaging it badly.

The following cases have had a hearing this week at the District Court room:

The two boys arrested last week by Officer Farnall for larceny were disposed of on Tuesday: Charles F. Barrett of Chelsea, for stealing a watch, &c., in Maine; his case was placed on file. The lad who stole the watch at Messrs. C. H. Hardwick & Co.'s ledge, belonging to R. G. Elliott, was sent to the State Reform School for one year.

Michael Gibbons, of Weymouth, for being drunk was fined $1 and costs.

Walton Crocker, of Quincy, for setting the harness shop occupied by him, and owned by William Patton, on fire. After hearing the evidence of Mr. William Patton and Officer Farnall, the case was continued until Thursday next, and Crocker being unable to give bonds was locked up. It appeared by the evidence that Mr. Crocker had failed to pay his rent and was ordered on July 1st to quit the premises, and give fifteen days notice. The time expired on the day following the fire. Also, that kerosene oil had been scattered about the premises with the intention of burning the building.

Mr. T. B. Thomas was quite severely injured last Thursday, he was getting in and one wheel of a heavily loaded wagon passed over his right foot, bruising it badly.

Master Clinton Kidder came near losing the sight of an eye last Friday by the explosion of a fire-cracker.

The Venture Engine Company held a meeting Monday night and played their engine, which worked well. There is some talk of a new uniform for the members this week.

Mr. John Feederle is having his residence supplied with gas by one of the American Gas Carbonizer Co.'s machines. This company agree to furnish gas of a better quality than that of the regular gas companies, for one dollar per thousand feet, and to warrant their machines for seventeen years.

We hear that Mr. Daniel Baxter has had an offer of fifteen thousand dollars for his "Point Holes" property and refused it.

A number of ladies and gentlemen have formed a singing association during the week which promises to advance with an interest that has been somewhat neglected in the past. To one who listened to the singing in the church the Fourth, it was evident that by proper effort, the people here could furnish as good vocal music as is ever heard in other places.

A petition to Judge Bumpus is in circulation praying him to abate what is claimed to be a nuisance in the shape of a piggery on Clubbuck street.

Our new lawyer, James J. Malone, has had several cases since opening his office and been successful in them all.

A substantial stone culvert has been built in front of the residence of Mr. J. T. Whitton; it should be duplicated at several points along the street.

Anniversary.

The Atlantic Mission observed its seventh anniversary last Sunday, before a large audience. During the past year its Sunday School has been under the able management of Mr. T. B. Emery, which was evinced by a varied and intensely interesting exercise, which held the congregation's closest attention to the end.

The Infant class, especially deserves praise for the long and difficult exercise through which it passed with scarcely a mistake, and its training reflects great credit upon the patience and painstaking of its efficient teacher, Miss Mattie Foster.

The audience were favored by a brilliant address from Mr. W. G. Corthell, and also a generous donation with condition, and song-stirring remarks from Mr. Chalmers of the B. Y. M. C. Association. The pastor of the Mission, Rev. W. Richardson, followed in a few terse sentences, setting forth the rapid growth and remarkable prosperity of the society, which is out of debt, and has money in the treasury.

From the Sunday school treasurer's report, it appears that the school is practically out of debt, and has a membership of 95. The music was choice, and the floral display very large and fine.

Murder in Braintree.

The good people of Braintree have been once more horrified by a murder in their midst. The body of Mr. William McComish, who had been missing for several days, was found on the evening of the 7th instant, in a field near Liberty St., East Braintree. But as he was seen drunk on the evening he went away, it was supposed he died from excessive use of intoxicating liquor, and Dr. Tower, the medical examiner decided accordingly, and placed the corpse in the hands of an undertaker, who buried it in Plain street cemetery.

This not being quite satisfactory, Officer Farnall of Quincy was employed, who has been investigating the affair. The evidence he soon gathered, convinced him that McComish was murdered, and he had the supposed guilty party, James McKenney, a townsman, arrested.

On Tuesday forenoon Medical Examiner C. T. Fowler of South Weymouth, had the remains exhumed, and made a careful autopsy on the body of McComish, in Plain street cemetery, in presence of A. O. Clark and A. J. Bates, selectmen of the town, and a few others. The result was that eleven ribs had punctured the heart, which was sufficient to have caused death. All the other organs were found to be in a healthy condition. When the result of the autopsy became known it created quite a sensation, and had the effect of changing men's ideas relative to the whole affair. McKenney is a foreigner and quite illiterate. According to his own statement he has been in the country eighteen years. He is a man probably about fifty-five years of age. He is a married man and the father of a family of children, but his wife and children left him and went to Kentucky, at least four years ago. Since then he has been living alone. It is said there were improper relations between McKenney and the wife of McComish, for which reason she left him; indeed it is said that this was the cause of his wife's leaving him, and this is alleged further as a motive for the terrible crime.

A hearing will be had before Judge Bumpus, at the District Court room in Quincy, Monday next.

Mr. McKenney is about 50 years of age; a tax dresser by trade, and he worked for some time in the Boston Flax Mills. About nine years ago he got employment at the tannery and continued there up to the time of his untimely death. He was naturally a quiet and inoffensive man, and it was only when in liquor that he was ugly. He was much thought of, we are told, by his late employer, Mr. Drinkwater, and also by his fellow-workmen.

About three o'clock Tuesday morning an alarm of fire was sounded, which proved to be the burning of Austin Tirrell's boat factory, at the east part of the town. Word was at once sent to the Landing for the steamer; the horses were sent for the start but, after long officers on foot found saw that the Company were without an engineer. A dispatch was soon sent to his residence but their not being enough of "red tape" he would not respond. PRICE 5 CENTS.

"He will read it to you now, Mr. Cecil," adding in a low tone, "He is sinking rapidly; I fear you must hasten."

I felt that I must. I seated myself at his bedside, and as I did so I saw his lips tremble, and I believed they were bringing a name; I imagined it was "Mabel."

Our boldest moves are born upon the spur of the moment.

"Mrs. Cecil, may I trouble you for a glass of water?" I asked, as I took out my pocket watch.

"Quick, sir, quick!" said I, as I noticed his sunken eyes watching her hastening footsteps. "Do you want your daughter to have all your property, save what the law gives your wife?"

"Do not trouble me from me as if I could not trust his own eyes," he said, doubting whether to put confidence in me; but he seemed to feel the necessity of doing so, and suddenly the dull eyes brightened with a momentary gleam of reason, and he said clearly and unswerving:

"Yes, yes! And God bless you!"

I and Joy was thanking heaven for the whim that had led me to write two wills so very like in strength and appearance, and it was only the work of a moment to make the exchange, and just in time.

With Mrs. Cecil came the housekeeper and a man servant, and in their presence the dying man tremblingly signed his name to the second will and they withdrew.

They had gone, and I started to go, when the old man pressed my hand and I saw the tears gathering in his eyes. As I turned to go I involuntarily felt that the black eyes of Madam Cecil had witnessed all and suspected everything.

"You will not tell your daughter," said I, firmly, in a low voice.

"Some other time. He's dying, Mrs. Cecil."

"So much the greater reason, sir!"

For the Patriot.

Our President and His Pet.

Our national festival was just at hand. We were waiting anxiously for its golden hours to dawn upon us and make our hearts, filled to the brim with joy and reverence, with still more measure of delight. We began to have some notes and strains of the grand serenade stealing upon our ears in advance, as players in the orchestra scatter sweet sounds as they tune their instruments, and the joyous renderer of the grand finished feast of music. The grass took on a finer hue of emerald, and the flowers were crowding their cups with sweetest perfume in honor of the grand day.

It was just then, the 4th of July close by—millions, old, middle-aged and young, with songs of welcome on the ends of their tongues to pour out with hearty voice,—the peace of that Grand Republic flowing like a river from centre to circumference,—that the shock of the news, that our honored and beloved President, had been stricken down by the shot of an assassin. The heart-rending intelligence broke over us like and like peals of thunder out of the sky, and the hearts of the noble man, great in wisdom and goodness, who had been called by the sovereign voice of his own people to lead, protect and defend them in the highest sense of the government? He is worthy to fill the place of the departed President. He will shed upon it a lasting lustre. Who could be wicked enough to have designs upon the valuable life of that amiable Christian gentleman, the scholarly statesman, the wise and patriotic

Show it to me."

"I will do it in an instant, calmly and suggestively in the face, and then started for the door."

"Stop!" she cried, and a tiny, silver-mounted revolver gleamed in her hand.

"My God! Mrs. Cecil, you have killed him! Has he died at your hands?" I cried. "I heard a strange sound."

"I heard me, and would have turned if all the pistols in the universe had been pointed at me."

The old man's arms had been lifted as in prayer, but now sank withered upon the pillow, whilst his eyes stared in the rigidity of death. He has died.

Instinctively Madam Cecil seemed to recognize that it was all over, and lowering the weapon, hissed at me between her pearly teeth:

"You've played me false—go! go! or I will shoot you!"

And I went, gladly enough, from the brown stone front, with its treachery, its wickedness and avarice, into the dark, dank, muddy streets. But I had carried out the wishes of the poor, dragonaged husband, and Mabel received her own. As soon as after her share of the estate could be obtained, the wretched woman disappeared from the neighborhood and it was understood had died for Australia.

My dear, old young and almost bristly lawyer, I was appointed Mabel's guardian, and I so faithfully fulfilled my trust that after six years when she was a little more than eighteen, she gave herself as well as her estate into my keeping; and as I write this, after my cozy tea, and as Mabel leans on the back of my chair watching the rapid strokes of the pen, she declared that it did not praise myself at all in the grand old house I did, and the courage I showed at the revolver's mouth, to sustain her rights.

"Katrina, will you bill me out due parcel!" she said, and I took up my pen, so to say, "Er excuse I vill, Sockery." Den she lait me and de parrel want but de first bill she mate I yellat, "Donderud blitzten, shop deet, dere is nails in de parrel!" You see de nails in de parrel? SOCKERY KADAROUT.

The Young Man with the Wringer

One day about a week ago a slim-wasted young man with a clothes wringer under his arm attempted to open the gate of a yard on Cass avenue. He had made up his mind that he could sell the people a wringer, and he might have accomplished his object but for a dog about as big as a tobacco

Not one is suffering in gloomy exile for expressing in the fullest and most offensive manner, his disapproval of the policy of the President's administration, and criticising in the severest terms his conduct and appointment of our chief magistrats. On the contrary, a splendid illustration of the genius of our free country, where the largest political latitude and liberty are given to political opinions and discussions. And so our mild and benignant ruler presides and governs with the generous spirit united with a firm and unflinching character, fine and true as steel, is as a heart as broad as the continent, and glowing with the tenderest emotions. Already this noble man, lying on his bed of distress, has spoken of the pardon of the detestable creatures whose wicked hand brought him to death's door, which stood ajar for days, and is not closed.

This horrible deed, which not one of the fifty millions in our own land, but all the civilized world deplore, is so execrable that an explanation is impossible. We may safely say that the wretch who shot him is the only human being on the globe who could wish our beloved President any personal harm. As I have said, the deed is so horrible, that I am, I repeat, sick at the sin, which looks like the picture of a sin, I repeated these words, which I am sure I applied to Guiteau with propriety than they were uttered by Job.

"Let the day perish wherein he was born. Let that day be darkness: let not God regard it from above, neither let the light shine upon it. Let darkness and the shadow of death stain it; let a cloud of blindness be upon the day thereof. As for that night, let darkness seize upon it; let it not be joined to the days of the year: let it not come into the number of the months. Lo, let that night be solitary

A Hint to Housekeepers.

I believe in systematic housekeeping when not carried to excess. It is very foolish to do work when you are not sleepy, because it is the regular day for it. When a person is not well, it is best to do as you can, not to try to do like I. I am never very well, but still manage to get through with all my work. When I do not feel able to do all my housekeeping in one day, let me tell you how I manage. I commence in the afternoon. (I know plenty of people who laugh, but never mind.) I clean all up in the morning, as carefully as if I was going to sleep instead of washing. Then, after dinner is all cleared away, I wash all the white clothes, and have them ready to hang up in the morning. Then I have the night to rest in. Let some poor tired woman try it, and see if it is not better than doing all in one day, and then be sick two or three days afterward.

A WIFE'S POWER. A good wife is a man's wisdom, strength and courage; a bad one is confusion, weakness and despair. No condition is hopeless to a man where his wife possesses firmness, decision and economy. There is no outward property which can counteract indolence, extravagance and folly at home. No spirit can long endure bad influences. Man is strong, but his heart is not adamant. He needs a tranquil home, and especially if he is an intelligent man, with a whole head, he needs its moral force in the conflict of life. To recover his composure home must be a place of peace and comfort. There his soul renews its strength, and he has the vigor to encounter the labor and troubles of life. But if at home he finds no rest, and there is met with bad temper, jealousy and gloom, or assailed with complaints and censures, he will wither, and he sinks into despair.

Mrs. Minningshars, who says one of her daughters is a bluestocking, cannot understand why ladies of wealth and fashion waste their time filling parlors with books, and she says she would rather have the other side of the gate for a chance to tackle some leg-weary agent.

"I'll call again," whispered the agent as he turned to go, and he meant just what he said. The presence of one dog did not discourage him except for the moment. He passed up the street and in an hour returned to try again. There was no dog there as he came to the door, but in ten seconds after the latch clicked, a bundle of teeth and bones shot around the corner of the house and the agent shot across the road.

"Now, you mark my words!" he said as he shook the wringer at the dog; "I'll get in there if I have to walk over your dead body!"

He was in there, but in the afternoon he returned. He surveyed the yard from every point, had reason to conclude that the dog was down cellar watching for rats, and finally opened the gate. School children who were watching say that the dog overshoot the mark in trying to swallow the agent and wringer at one gulp, and therefore got neither; but it was such a close call that the young man went round the corner minus his hat and one coat tail. He did not return again by daylight. Perhaps it was he who tossed the poisoned meat over the fence that night, and perhaps some young man who wanted to fall in love with the good-looking girl in the house. Some folks may think the dog didn't, and the man who tossed the meat didn't, but the contrary. The agent was on hand about nine o'clock the next morning, and to his great joy discovered the dog's dead body lying in the yard. The poison had done its work and he was free to announce the merits of his wringer to the waiting family.

☞ "Hurry up, barber, send the customer in the chair." "This soap on my face itches terribly." "Just have a little more lather on it. I shall commence scratching you immediately," was the reply.

☞ A young lady recently presented her lover with an elaborately constructed pen-wiper, and was astonished, the following Sunday, to see him come let no joyful sound come therein. Let them curse it that curse the day; they are ready to raise up their mourning. Let the stars of the twilight thereof be dark; let the moon be light; but have no voice, neither let us see the dawning of the day, because it hid not sorrow from our eyes."

The sentiment of boyalty in the American people, which eclipses all political differences, is outraged by the foul deed, as it was when the great good Lincoln fell by the hand of the outlaw Booth, the elder brother of John the two great traitors, stained with ineffaceable infamy.

But, as John Wesley said, "the best of all is, God is with us." With his gracious ear he has heard our prayers that the precious life of our honored President may be spared to his afflicted family and his sorrowing people. And so we are cheered daily by the welcome news that our wounded President is fighting bravely with death, whose shadows are vanishing before the rising rays of life and health.

When we reflect upon the high character of the distinguished sufferer at Washington, that such a man should be stricken down by malice, is more difficult to imagine than to think that the great comet blazing in our northern sky should fall in its sublime journey, and drop down from the firmament, and hurl it from its orbit into darkness and chaos.

Let us rejoice in the sweet and tender sympathies which often the pillow of our patient President, and lighten the slow-marching way, heavy with weariness and grief, of the noblest of our fellow promises, and act in its spirit:

"Call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me."

RALPH W. NEW YORK, July 12, 1861.

☞ The vicar of a village near Gravesend, England, who is somewhat unpopular with some of his parishioners made certain remarks in a recent sermon, to which a lady smiled scornfully. "I have never seen you," said the vicar, "at the church service, but I have seen you seated, and having given her a good shaking, returned to his place and left her."

The Liquor Cases.

The District Court room was filled on Monday morning with persons eager to witness the trial of some of the liquor dealers in Quincy. Twelve warrants had been issued on complaint of Henry H. Faxon, Esq., ten for illegal sales, and two for maintaining screens, etc. Three of the complaints were against unlicensed dealers.

The result was that four were fined $50 and costs each, and two were discharged. The cases of the remainder were continued until Monday next for decision.

Mr. Faxon contrived a very ingenious method of catching his fish. He employed, through the aid of Officer Lound of Weymouth, two young men of that place, by the name of Herbert S. Dyer and Henry S. Lound, to visit the liquor shops in Quincy and procure evidence sufficient to convict, either by drinking on the premises, or by buying and carrying away. The detectives and the stand told a straightforward story, so much so that probably Judge Bangs will fine the most of them $50 and costs. They will naturally appeal to the Superior Court, which meets at Dedham in September. If found guilty, they will be obliged to pay the fine and costs and forfeit their licenses to sell intoxicating liquor.

It appeared by cross-questioning the witnesses that Officer Faxon was to pay them $2 per day and expenses; that they visited Quincy mostly in the evening, and on several occasions were accompanied by Mr. Faxon, who went in disguise, having a long gray beard, a moustache and large eyebrows, white spectacles, etc., under the assumed name of Mr. Brown.

On Friday Patrick S. McDonald, a driver of H. P. Abbott, of Quincy, was before the court on two complaints made by Constable Thomas of Weymouth, for selling whiskey in Weymouth. After hearing a part of the evidence, the cases were continued until Tuesday.

THE ASSASSIN'S STATISTICS. The Assessor has so far completed their labors as to be able to give us the following figures:—
Rate of taxation, per 1,000, $12.50
Number of polls, 2,716
Real estate, $1,019,780
Personal, 5,014,780
Total valuation, $7,900,281
Rate of taxation last year, 12.25

HAVE YOU A DOG. The Selectmen of Quincy have placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Francis a warrant to kill all dogs unlicensed. Constable Stoughton intends to do his duty faithfully, and will commence at once to prosecute the owners and kill the dogs licensed, and there is no good reason why the remaining 300 should not do likewise. As the officer has a list of those who have not paid it is of no use for them to think of escaping the tax; nor wait and expect the officer to call; for that is not his duty. His orders are, destroy at once all dogs that are unlicensed, or have not got a collar about the neck with the owner's name.

Warm air Thursday was a very hot day. Heat turned to hot air and at last reached better. The thermometer stood nearly 90 degrees of excessive heat in the shade. Our great renowned and venerable prophet of the nineteenth century, Prof. Vennor, had been withdrawn from the weather arena, and like the famous "Mother Superior," step from further prophecies. After the repeated failures of Mr. Vennor to fix the weather of New England, he has once more given the changes to take place in August, which, according to his say are very disagreeable. He has not thus far succeeded very well as will be seen by his predictions in another column.

TIN FIDDLERS. There have been quite a number of Jews, Italians and other foreigners travelling through our streets, loaded with tin ware for sale. These fellows are a nuisance, often cheating our people with their worthless wares, and injuring the regular tinmiths in this place. Yesterday morning Officer Farnall had one of these chaps before the court, and he was fined $20 and costs. The peddler pretended he had a license, but on examination of his paper, it did not prove to be so. Most of these fellows hail from New York, and are in the habit of coming to Boston, and they need watching.

PRIVATE SALES. Among the recent private sales we notice the following:—

Susan E. Twitchell to Dr. James McEnaney, one acre and one-half with buildings on Washington street, Quincy, adjoining the new Public Library lot, for $10,000.

Weymouth Savings Bank, 942 feet of land with buildings on Beal street, corner of Central street, Quincy, to Sarah Nesbitt, for $2,500.

Betsy J. Lind to Elinore J. Tirrell three-fourths acre of land on Front street, Weymouth, for $1300.

OBITUARY. Died on Thursday, at his residence near Neponset village, Mr. John G. Wood, an aged and highly respected citizen. Mr. Wood, who formerly kept the tavern at Weymouth Landing, removed to Neponset about fifty years ago, and was for many years proprietor and land agent of a hotel in that place, which was afterwards purchased by Mr. Nathan Holbrook. Davidson, which leaves Boston daily, and all purchasers of tickets are entitled to admission to Pilgrim Hall, Plymouth, containing many celebrated curiosities.

Last Wednesday morning as a freight train from Boston was passing the Quincy Adams depot, about 10.30, a rail car rolled over and threw two cars off. It took nearly an hour to place the cars on the track, and once more business was resumed. Passenger trains from Braintree to Boston were obliged to use the West Quincy Branch to avoid too much delay.

Considerable talk and complaint has been made in regard to the police of West Quincy, not dispersing the mode of outlaws. This is a very important thing, and our Selectmen should attend to it at once. Let the population of the West District be properly protected against the gang of loafers who congregate and throw out insults and slang at the passers by.

On Tuesday afternoon the Quincy Yacht Club sailed their second championship regatta of the season off Great Hill, Hough's Neck. Two classes only sailed; the second and third. There was only one entry in the first-class. Owing to the heavy shower at the time for the sail the yachts were delayed about an hour in their start. The race was very exciting, as the stiff breeze carried the yachts over the course in handsome style. The course for the second-class was seven and one-third miles, and the third was six miles.

The result of this race secures the championship to the Rocket in the third-class. The second class championship is still undecided as the Clara B. won the race of July 24, and the Amy on Tuesday. The next regatta comes off on the 31st of this month. Messrs. James T. Penman, Samuel Bass, Charles H. Porter and N. B. Farnall were the judges. The following is a summary of the race:—

The members of the Granite Engine Company played their engine this evening.

Miss Ella Elwell of Dorchester, is enjoying her vacation in the west part of the town.

Mr. Thorndike tells us that one day his windmill draughted 400 gallons of water in 20 minutes. We are right glad that there is at last one windmill among us that is doing for temperance what all the other windmills have failed to do.

On Sunday Rev. J. F. Shiffeld of Marshfield, preached in exchange with Rev. Mr. Brightman of Marshfield's text was: "We love him because he first loved us." Let John, 4th and 10th.

E. A. Hollingsworth, Esq., lost a valuable horse last week, said to be worth $400. It seems that he got cast in the stall, and injured his spine so badly that he had to be shot.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. W. Arnold left this (Saturday) morning for Marblehead, where they intend to stay for a few weeks and enjoy the hospitality of Fogg, Shaw & Greenwood, fine boat manufacturers, are now very busy at their factory. The firm gives out considerable work to be done outside.

Deacon Steadman, emery cloth manufacturer, has had his residence on School street, which he had been thoroughly washed, for the farmers very generally use paragon nowadays to keep the bugs off the vines.

Persons buying new potatoes should be careful that the potatoes are thoroughly washed, for the farmers very generally use paragon nowadays to keep the bugs off the vines.

The tannery still continues to run both night and day.

Don't be led into any trouble by being too hasty or acting upon the impulse of the moment when you feel excited and angry. If there was anything in the House the night you have in (an act you ought not to have committed) that you paid for with your own money, you are entitled to it without doubt; but all the property that has been presented to the W. M. French Company from time to time belong to that company, no matter whether last year's members compose it or not. If you will stop and think you must see that this is a fact, and that certain property was presented to an organization and not to individuals. Now a friend wants you to go slowly; take good care of everything you have received from the House and when the Engineers have approved of a company, you will be both honest and wise if you return to its care all "company property" of every description.

In view of the past services of Hose 1, its well-known promptness and efficiency, the members should have received a proper notification of an intention to close their house. As this was not given them it seems as though a settlement of the disagreeable features of this affair, might be speedily arrived at in this way, viz.:—let the property taken away, be returned at once to the House and put in its proper place; then, (as the house was locked up without notice) let the padlock be removed, and a notice sent to the company of the non-approval of their names, with the reasons therefor; then if those men do not see fit to sever under the rules adopted by the Engineers, give them an opportunity to take such articles as are their personal property, and appoint a new company who will. Thus no false pride will prevent a friendly settlement of this whole trouble is the desire of

For the Patriot.

Quincy Point Items.

The appearance of the Vulture engine house has been much improved by repainting. Now for a new piece of fencing on the easterly side to make everything look slick.

Free rum, free fights, plenty of drunken men and boys, were some of the features of the picnic (?) at Lovell's Grove last Saturday according to the reports of parties who were there.

The Vulture Engine Company held its regular meeting last Monday evening and played their engine, using two hundred feet of hose and a one-and-a-half inch nozzle; the stream thrown was a powerful one. Several patterns of uniforms were shown the members but they were unable to make a selection. A new "street pipe" has been purchased by the company. Not only is the hose and cost of eight dollars, but arrangements are being made for a grand firemen's muster at Forest Grove, Boston, in the last week of September. There will be two days sport; one for steamers and the other for hand engines. It is proposed to give six hundred dollars in prizes for the hand machines and the amount will probably be divided into three prizes of $250, $150, $100. There have been so many musters of late held under canvas, that this one ought to be an exception and held in the open air. Not only has there been a grand and successful demonstration expressed by the firemen with the height of the tents used, but the end stroke engine men have felt they labored under a disadvantage when playing under cover. An out-door play between the Gen. Bates and the Conqueror would be quite interesting and the Vulture and the two well-known Gardner engines would undoubtedly take part with them. Mr. Gould of the Firemen's Standard is the principal mover in the proposed muster and solicits correspondence from firemen. The entrance fee has not been settled upon yet, but will probably be about twenty-five dollars.

Hose One! Get back where you belong even if you have to "eat a little cork" it won't hurt you; it only tastes disagreeable.

Be easy with brother firemen; "make up," all around.

Eighty-one out of a possible ninety, won the prize offered by the proprietor of the open air shooting gallery, for the best score during last week. Professors of "shooters" are not allowed to compete.

Mr. Fred H. Smith is at Nantasket Beach for two weeks.

Mrs. H. M. Foderhen and son will rusticate at South Scituate until September.

Mr. W. T. Barry is visiting friends in Portland Maine, Master Rupert F. Blackmar sailed for Europe, Wednesday to be gone until the middle of September.

During evening the young men of the P. G. H. P. C. serenaded their newly married friend, Mr. Willie A. Hayden at his residence at the Neck. The band (?) played "Oh! Willie we shall miss you" and other familiar airs and the darkness was illumined by burning tar barrels. After getting a response from the recipient, the members of the Club wended their way homeward.

The Quincy Musical Association held a rehearsal Monday evening at the residence of W. T. Barry.

Where is the committee appointed last March to take into consideration the department matters? Perhaps it is awaiting further developments in the present system.

According to all accounts the President of the Quincy Point Temperance Association has not adjourned for the season; he seems to be still actively at work. Money, authority and brains ought to be able to sustain and enforce the laws relating to the liquor traffic.

Quite a number of nackerel have been caught off the Point bridge during the week.

Penney and daughters Tessie and Lizzie sailed from Boston this week for Richmond, Me., from there they go to Baltimore, Md., and then home; the trip will last about a month. Mrs. Penney and daughter Nettie started Thursday to visit friends in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The only thing necessary to make the yacht "Amy" win, is to have its owner reside at the Point; at least it seemed so last Tuesday at Mear's and Thursday at Downer Landing.

Miss Ella Elwell is visiting friends at Boston Highlands.

Master Fred Badger, son of Mr. Leonard C. Badger, came very near being seriously injured on Saturday morning last, by the horse which he was driving becoming frightened.

Mrs. Dearborn, an aged lady of the west part of the town, was found dead in her chair on Saturday morning last. A large crowd of people was gathered at the west part of the town, and the West Quincy depot on Saturday morning last, to witness the gathering of the Scottish Lads.

Mr. Joseph Tripanier and family arrived here on Sunday from Canada, where they had been rusticated for a few weeks.

About two hundred people attended the Forester's Picnic at Highland Lake Grove, on Tuesday last.

Faxon's Appointment Reversed.

There was considerable excitement in the street yesterday morning, when the name was circulated that Henry H. Faxon, Esq., had been removed from his office as special police. Upon inquiry we were informed that Mr. Faxon received on Thursday evening a letter, of which the following is a copy:

Selections Office,
Quincy, Aug. 13, 1881.
Mr. Henry H. Faxon—Sir: At a special meeting of the board of Selections held this evening, your appointment as special police officer for the enforcement of the liquor laws was revoked, the same to take effect at 9 o'clock A. M., Aug. 12, 1881, and you are hereby notified to that effect.

For the board of Selections,
ALFRED SAMSONS, Secretary.

We learn that the Selections voted unanimously to revoke his license, but for what reason is not given. By Mr. Faxon, when asked by a Herald reporter what he proposed to do about it, said:

"Do? Why, precisely the same as I have been doing. I can do pretty much everything as a citizen that I have done as an officer, except enter the suspected premises. I don't care a straw for the matter, not a straw."

A REMARKABLE FAMILY. In a July number of the PATRIOT, we copied from the Washington Post an article relating to the Lakin family of Neponset, in which it was said that it was remarkable that a family of seven should remain unbroken for half a century. We have learned that the Farnham family of this town have a very remarkable record. There are seven members now living, five sisters and two brothers whose united ages aggregate 450 years. The eldest one is Mrs. Mary W. Freeman, aged 75 years, who resides in West Sumner, Maine. Mrs. Caroline W. Merrill, who resides in Quincy, is now 72. Mrs. Eliza W. Fisher, of West Dedham, 71. Mrs. Harriet W. Quimby, of Lyndonville, Vermont, 67. Mrs. Ann W. Emerson, of Quincy, 62. Mr. Bryant Farnham, of Scituate, 58, and N. B. Farnham, of this town, 53. Fifty years ago had a brother died leaving the family circle seven, which number has remained intact all these many years.

OFFICERS ELECTED. The grand rector of the Physiognosopically Society held its annual meeting at Lovell's Groves, North Weymouth, on Tuesday evening last, the Past Grand Noble in the chair. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Noble Duffer, J. C. Francis, Jr., Grand Senior;—Eben W. Underwood, Grand Junior;—Frank C. Dasha, Grand Secretary;—William S. Peppercorn, Grand Kyphers and Aquatics;—George Stewart, Edward Griffin, Messrs. Hathaway, Greenwood and Fallon.

DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY. Those passing the residence of Capt. Noah Cummings on Adams street, on Thursday, Aug. 6th, might have seen a merry party on the lawn, with the guests, being assembled in celebrating his diamond anniversary. Children and grandchildren, together with friends from New York, Providence and Boston, were present, and none of the guests felt younger and happier than the Captain himself. Would that we had many such, in our good old town, to show seventy-five years of usefulness and to reach such an age, with families unimpaired. Such are the examples of a life of cheerfulness and sobriety.

TOO MUCH FISH. A new departure has been taken in this line. The excursion train from Silver Lake last Wednesday night, brought some of the hoodlums with them, who, as the train passed the Quincy station, threw a brick and a stone at some young fellows standing by the lawn, with the result of a large gathering and among them was quite a number of aged ladies, who enjoyed the pleasures of the trip as much as many of those who were younger. Dancing, riding in the cars, and strolling on the beach were some of the principal pleasures enjoyed. After a delightfully spent day most of the party returned to their homes about six o'clock.

QUICK WORK. A week ago yesterday the Assessor succeeded in finding the valuation of Quincy for the year of taxation for 1881; and in one week's time they have figured each individual's tax, and recorded it in a book, which has been given to the Collector, with a warrant in due form for collecting the same. Seldom is work of this kind done so quick a time in a town of 10,000 population.

We learn from a reliable source that the recent expense of grading Washington street, did not exceed the town's appropriation, for a large part of the gravel was needed on other streets, and did not cost any more for carting direct from Washington street, than from a gravel bank; therefore, so that the expense was charged to necessary repairs, instead of "grading Washington street," which appears perfectly right and proper.

Some of the crack shots up town seem to have a chance to shoot at the amateurs of the Point. It seems as though they might wait awhile considering the fact, that firing at a target is something new here and has only been in vogue three weeks. Come and show us how first, and later in the season perhaps a team could be selected which would be able to make a respectable score, in an "off-hand match."

Though rather green at the business now, still we will not decline to shoot immediately if our more proficient citizens are very much to try us in a friendly way here.

We learn from a reliable source that the recent expense of grading Washington street, did not exceed the town's appropriation, for a large part of the gravel was needed on other streets, and did not cost any more for carting direct from Washington street, than from a gravel bank; therefore, so that the expense was charged to necessary repairs, instead of "grading Washington street," which appears perfectly right and proper.

An Explanation.

Having seen only one-sided statements in your paper and in the daily papers in regard to the troubles between the Engineers and the Hose Company, I desire a place in your paper for an explanation.

Last March the Engineers passed a vote limiting the different companies to thirty cents per man for refreshments. We were satisfied with the amount, but as the first of these thereafter this company was the only company to receive the limited order for procuring refreshments. At this time, one company purchased $24 worth, and the bill was approved.

June 6th this year, by request, the steam pump was tried, and the Foreman was offered an order for $6 worth of refreshments, which he refused, as he had a right to do. At the next meeting the company decided in the future to provide refreshments at their own expense, and passed the following resolution: That the Foreman receive no limited orders (for he could receive no other), for refreshments from the Engineers."

In the year 70-80 $3000 was paid by the town for refreshments; in the year 80-81 $800 was paid. Had the Engineers been abolished or the other companies done the same as this company, the town would have been the gainer by a number of hundred dollars.

As regards the statement that we refused to obey the orders of the Engineers, I promise you the same thing, and I defy any Engineer of his or any board to mention an order ever disobeyed by this company since its formation in 1860.

In regard to the statements that we have not been an authorized company since May 1st, and that the Engineers have not recognized us as such, I have papers in my possession to prove that we were authorized; that we have done duty, and been recognized as a company.

The removal of the vane from the house was done in good faith, and for the purpose of allowing the company to spend $25 in repainting and regilding it. If any property was removed from the house belonging to private individuals, it will be returned to them on notification. We only wish for the property belonging to us and what our money paid for.

It seems the Engineers are very sensitive, as they acknowledge we have always been prompt and done our duty, and the only reason for their action was, the passing of the vote mentioned above, as they took it as an insult to them. They have been assured that such was not the case. We think they have been misled by their own feelings, and we notified of their displeasure at the vote, or given a chance to reconsider it. We are men, and only desire to be treated as men. When Engineers Hall and Glover (with the padlock in their pocket) visited the house at eight o'clock, the night the lock was put on, they were treated with respect, and nothing was said that they had any grievance, or that a lock was to be put on, but like a thief in the night, when everybody was asleep placed the lock on the house.

Why was the company not notified that their services were no longer required? What would the citizens have expected of this company from 11 p. m. till morning in case of an alarm of fire? That they would respond promptly. And they would have done so, lock or no lock. In placing the lock on the house under such circumstances, and the water even, many thanks to him, an insult to each member individually and collectively, and to those citizens who looked to us for protection in time of need.

When raging flames are nigh, "God and the Hose Company," was the people's cry; But when it's out, and all is righted, God is forgot, and the company slighted.

PLAYMOITH. It is well worth a long journey to see the historic sights of Plymouth. Memorial Hall alone, with its unique marvels, is a study to the antiquary and pleasure-seeker. The boulder whereon the Pilgrims first landed, now under the granite edifice, and the great monument with its gigantic figure of Faith, (said to be the largest piece of stone sculpture in the world,) attract modern pilgrims from all climes. The advantage of sea travel to this famous spot is obvious, and with increased rest at the paternal home, it is hoped he will return to his labor greatly refreshed.

Mr. Edward Gilpin, one of the well-known printers of the PATRIOT office, has gone to Taunton, and, with increased rest at the paternal home, it is hoped he will return to his labor greatly refreshed.

New England's Chautauqua.

From the Braintree Observer.

Those people who attended the commemorative services at the old church at Hingham, on Monday last, enjoyed the visit of the Chautauqua, and the day was a most delightful one. The day was a most delightful one. The day was a most delightful one.

It is needless at this time to tell what is meant by Chautauqua, for that name has become a household word, and I dare say that there is hardly a knowledge of the word throughout the country, but what has been influenced directly or indirectly by these gatherings, and now the 23rd of this month, we are to have one almost at home.

Most surely no place could be found so adapted for this purpose as in South Framingham, being at the junction of two important railroads extending over the country, north, south and east; situated at nearly the center of New England's population; abounding in beautiful drives and roads, and in the vicinity of the most important buildings; the well-dressed and intelligent audience, the most of them lineal descendants of those rugged men who assisted in laying the foundation of this remarkable church two hundred years ago, the speakers representing the best culture of New England, most of whom could trace their lineage back to the first settlers of Hingham,—we could not help contrasting in our imagination this scene with the first meeting held in this house.

Mr. Charles F. Harrington and wife, of Boston, with Mr. and Mrs. Trip, who are occupying the Beals cottage, went sailing the other day, and the tide going out, got stuck in the mud some distance out, and were obliged to wade ashore.
Hon. George Harrington, ex-minister to Bernese, Switzerland, and ex-assistant secretary of the United States treasury, who has lived in Europe the last eight years, is making his sisters, Mrs. H. L. Cobb and Mrs. W. H. Goddard, a visit at Rock Island.

ROCK ISLAND.
On Saturday evening last an entertainment was given by the residents of Rock Island. It consisted of a laughable farce, entitled, "Two Heads Are Better Than One;" a recitation and a pantomime, entitled "Advertising for a Wife." The whole entertainment was gotten up during the day, but so creditably was each part sustained that a longer time would seem necessary. Our reporter was fully repaid for his visit.
HOUGH'S NECK.

For the Patriot.
Last Saturday, was pay day on Moon Island, and since that time at all hours of the day and night, drunken men might be seen "reeling homeward," and in many instances laid out on the roadside in a sound sleep.
Of course the people of Atlantic who live upon Squamann and Atlantic streets, and others, who have occasion to travel over these highways, do not particularly enjoy such "company," and were it not for the efforts of Officers Hunt and Richardson in maintaining order, the nuisance would have been intolerable.
It is indeed strange that the Selectmen have not yet taken any action upon the several petitions sent in asking that either a both of these excellent officers be detailed for duty in this locality during the progress of the work at Squamann and Atlantic Islands. It is hoped that the needed protection will soon be granted.
On Wednesday night a party of young folks enjoyed a pleasant sail "in the moonlight" on the famous yacht Crosby, Capt. "Bully" Reed.

For the Patriot.
Mr. Harry Mosley, the manager of a large sugar plantation in Cuba, and a son of the proprietor of the Atlantic House, has purchased of Geo. W. Prescott, Esq., a fine lot of land upon Atlantic streets.
The John Q. Adams Chemical Engine Co. had its annual monthly call on Monday night.
J. M. Glover, Esq., has presented them a handsome flag-staff, which will be placed upon their engine house.
We hear a "rumor" that the streets and walks will surely receive some attention from the town authorities.

For the Patriot.
Coaches for the land league picnic last Saturday, at Lovell's Grove, were well patronized.
Some weeks since mention was made by a Hingham correspondent in a local newspaper, that the old buttonwood trees in front of the Cushing House had ceased to be an ornament to that place. Mr. Cushing after reading the article accidentally found the publication in the law under the tree, and now the writer thinks that he never saw them looking better. Surely there is great power in the press and that the sycamore is very sensitive. Not only are trees and plants but some think that the solid granite is sensitive, and feels the power of the press if the publication is set from the right "font."
Years ago men were blasting a ledge on Front street, and for a long time made but little progress, all at once the work went on very rapidly. On being asked the cause a veteran on the work said that he had found the trouble, he had been "tamping" the charges with Universalist papers, but now he was using publications of other denominations.

For the Patriot.
Our venerable friend and poet, Mr. F. M. Adlington, who the past three months has been feeling quite unwell, is now enjoying his usual good health, and says that he is passing the dog days nicely. That is more than many can say. Mr. A. is nearly ninety-two years of age.
The advertised auction sale of property on Franklin street last Saturday was adjourned.—the third mortgage having settled the claims of the Weymouth Savings Bank.
Mr. Charles Spear, who got with an accident while at work at J. W. Hart's factory, July 11, necessitating the amputation of a finger on the left hand, and whose hand and arm since that time have been much swollen and painful, with signs of erysipelas, called in the services of Dr. Frazier and had his hand lanced. The doctor thinks that the danger is over. With the usual generosity of J. W. Hart & Co., Mr. Spear receives his weekly pay as usual.

For the Patriot.
If a suitable place at moderate cost can be obtained on Lincoln or Washington Squares, a new grocery store will be opened. The stock of goods will be of the best quality.
The largest number of bicycles ever seen at any one time on Front street were there on Monday evening. The Vice President of the club took the lead, and little Johnnie brought up the rear. Whole number, scattering not heard from, eight.
Timothy Brownson was the lucky man and won the silver cup at the Land League picnic last Saturday. Tim always feels at home when an opportunity occurs where he can "trip the light fantastic toe."

For the Patriot.
Adversity seems to follow Mr. Samuel Holbrook. Last Saturday his valuable Jersey cow was taken sick and grew worse until Tuesday, when it was thought best to have her killed.
Rate of taxation in Weymouth, $15.00.
Number of acres of land, 9,331.
Number of poll tax-payers, 2,971.
Total appropriations, $89,985.21.

For the Patriot.
The Hingham Water Company has declared a dividend of 2 1/2 per cent. The works have been in operation only one year.
Births.

Normal School, Bridgewater.

The State Normal School at Bridgewater will begin its fall term September 7. New physical and chemical laboratories, and the best approved modern appliances for teaching these subjects, will be ready for use on the opening of the next term. The normal pupils are trained to teach these subjects experimentally, and to make and use simple apparatus such as they can secure and use in their own schools. The laboratories for mineralogy and geology, and for botany, zoology and physiology will be refitted, and the rooms used for other studies will be furnished with increased facilities for teaching these subjects.

The school has a beautiful location, is open to both sexes, and is one of the pleasantest to pupils. Board is furnished at cost in a commodious boarding house adjacent to the school building. Tuition free to those who teach in Massachusetts.

The corps of teachers consists of Mr. A. G. Boyden, who has had charge of the school for twenty-one years, and eight assistants, four gentlemen and four ladies, all of whom have had successful experience in teaching in the public schools, so that they are personally acquainted with the work for which they are preparing the pupils.

The courses of study, a two-years' course and a four-years' course, are adapted to the wants of teachers in both the Common and High Schools. A large majority of the pupils are from high schools and academies, and college graduates avail themselves of its professional training.

The improvements in its means of teaching, enable the school to offer students advantages to which few desire to make thorough preparation for teaching. The school is now entering upon its forty-second year.

Second Councilor District.

Hon. Thomas Rice of Shrewsbury is prominently mentioned as a candidate for Councilor from the Second Councilor District. This district comprises the whole of Norfolk County, the First Senatorial District of Bristol County, the Second Worcester District, and the Eighth Suffolk District. Hon. H. Tweed of Taunton has held the place two years, the ladies W. O. Taylor and M. C. Taylor. Mr. Taylor held the position two years and a half, and Mr. Spaulding was appointed by the Legislature to fill out the year. By courtesy and right this year the nomination should go to Worcester County, and as Mr. Rice is a native of this county in favor of Mr. Taylor, the nomination should be given to him this year. Mr. Rice is a business man and has a thorough knowledge of the requirements of the State and the people of the district. The position of a member of the Executive Council is one of great importance, and as many public trusts are entrusted to the Council, the people demand that men of experience and integrity, and uncompromising defenders of the people's rights, should be selected for such high stations. Mr. Rice is a prominent member of the Shoe and Leather Exchange, a Director in several Banks, and largely identified with the Industrial and Manufacturing interests of his district, and is well known to be a large number. He is a firm friend of home industry, and is fearless for right and justice.

OPEN PRIZE REGATTA. The South Boston Inquirer offers a silver cup for competition among local boats. It is to be a magnificent work of the sculptor Smith's art, of unique and appropriate design, and valued at $50. The following is the proposition:—

"All clubs shall enter in one class and race, and give employment to regular club sailors for allowance; the first race to be sailed under the rules of the Boston Yacht Club; the subsequent races to be sailed under club rules; the first race to be the boat winning the cup in two races; to be entitled thereto; the races to be sailed July 24th, there are no other public regattas. A small entrance fee, at the rate of ten cents per boat, covers necessary expense will be required.

If our proposition meets with the favor from your district, the day will be announced for the first race. As the season is getting late, a prompt response on the part of all interested will greatly obligate the publishers of the Inquirer."

HARTEN'S MAGAZINE for September is an unusually attractive and entertaining number—an argosy richly laden with the treasures of Summerland. The number opens with two exquisite engravings; the frontispiece—a full-page illustration, by ARBEY, of one of HERMAN MELVILLE'S "Typee" sketches; "WICK AND FRENCH"; the other an engraving by COLE, of Mrs. JESSIE CURTIS SHEPHERD'S beautiful drawing illustrating a poem by H. H., entitled "The Little Kings and Queens." Written in Quincy at Souther's periodical store.

THE FISCAL YEAR of the U. S. treasury opens with an unusually favorable start. The deficit in the public debt for the first month ending July 31st, being over $10,000,000, against $2,000,000 for July, 1880. The large excess of surplus revenue over that for July of last year is attributable entirely to a reduction of expenditures, as the aggregate receipts for last month are nearly $300,000,000 above those for July, 1880.

TERIBLE HORSE DISEASE. A terrible horse disease has broken out in Camden, Ohio, and vicinity. It is regarded as the same disease prevalent in England, and is called "The Illinois." The horses take it suddenly, and it proves fatal in all cases. Great jumps raise upon their bodies before death.

Gen Hancock declines all invitations to public entertainments

On last Friday evening the employees of Mr. D. Whittemore, and a few friends, to the number of forty, having procured the party yacht, Loon, of James of 34 Long wharf, Boston, took the 8.30 a. m. train for the named place. After the usual waiting for the tardy one we started at eleven o'clock for Minor's. All went well till we arrived of Boston light, when those who had turned in notwithstanding the music and singing on deck, were aroused by a terrible noise. On reaching deck all was in confusion. It was discovered that we had been run into by a large schooner carrying away from her mainmast, gaff and boom, and also setting adrift our tender.

After we found out that no one had been knocked over board, the skipper thought it best to return to the city and procure another boat, not caring to venture outside without the mainsail.

We sailed very well under foresail and jib till we reached buoy nine, off Fort Winthrop, when another still larger schooner was sighted just ahead coming directly for us. As we had no other way, it was supposed that the other vessel would change her course but in spite of all our skipper could not come on our broadside to, forcing our anchor through the planks about a foot below the water line. We were all more or less frightened. Our jib-dancer got ready to swim ashore, and other man was bound not to go out of this world hungry, and so sat down to eat while the others were shouting for help, for the water, was running in very fast,—both vessels got out of the way as soon as possible. In the meantime our colored steward, who was lazy, sleepy-looking fellow, went quietly to work and filled the hole with oakum and stopped the leak almost entirely after that the party were more quiet but still scared. Long wharf was reached about 3.30 a. m. and the time till 9.30 was spent in looking up another boat. We shifted baggage and started again, minus about a dozen who had not gotten over their fright enough to go.

A point about four miles below Minor's was reached in due season, and a large quantity of fish was taken, which amounted to four sculpins. After eating (joying?) a miserable chowder served in dishes with an inch of dirt and grass stuck to them, sail was set for home,—which was reached about 11.45 p. m.

Considering all things life party thought it was risky to get out of the harbor, and so the party were more quiet, and in getting more tired. REBUT.

REPLY.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq., the police, man recently removed by the unanimous vote of the Selectmen of Quincy, for doing "too much duty," gave on Saturday last, in the Boston Herald, a lengthy reply to the public criticisms in the daily papers, as to his labors as a police officer. He tells much truth in his usual sharp cutting way. He says he did not seek the office, nor what he did and did not want it. But, as he was chosen by a large majority at the town meeting, and being urged by many prominent temperance men to accept of the same, he consented, feeling it to be his duty.

He has tried to enforce the law without fear or favor, to the best of his ability. As to the employment of such assistants, he admits that he did and that he paid them for their services. He says, even the federal government is obliged in the collection of its internal taxes on spirits and tobacco, to make use of "special agents," who are not to be taken to task for doing their duty. He says that the law is not to be enforced in this state without detectives, as nine out of ten of those who gratify their appetites will perjure themselves on the witness stand. He says that the Selectmen are not to be taken to task for the way in which they could in the way of the enforcement of the law. Places have been licensed in back rooms and basements, where it was nearly impossible for an officer to get any view of the premises without being seen before he could discover anything. Parties have been licensed whose reputations were bad even for rum-sellers; and the law requiring the paraphernalia and accommodations, necessary to obtain common licenses, has been ignored, as were many other restrictions which should have been looked after before the licenses were granted.

The President.

The dispatches from Washington are more and more discouraging, and we think our readers need not feel surprised if they hear of the President's death on any day. He appears to be growing weaker and weaker, and weaker. He takes but little nourishment, and that is very poorly digested. The gland has not yielded to the surgical treatment as was expected, but continues unchanged. Other complications have arisen, according to outside reports, which will necessitate a suspension of the enemata. It is said that the lower part of the bowels has given out as the stomach did, and become inflamed.

PERSONAL. Miss W. S. Cogswell of Hyde Park, formerly of Quincy, with her son, Edward Everett, is enjoying the fine mountain air of New Hampshire, riding through the state in their carriage. They are taking this excursion, not only for pleasure but for health. The son, Edward, swallowed last Friday a small piece of wood, which produced an abscess in his right lung, causing him to cough and raise considerable phlegm. His physicians advised him to go away from the salt breeze; accordingly he is visiting the mountains, accompanied by his devoted mother.

A HEAVY LOSS. The large five-story brick warehouse of Warner & Merritt in Philadelphia was destroyed by fire on Tuesday morning last. Their loss is estimated at $85,000, and they are insured for $100,000. Two employees perished in the building. The junior member of the firm is well known to the readers of the PATRIOT, having resided in Quincy for many years. He and his partner have the sympathy of all in this place. How the fire originated is unknown, but resulted from an explosion in the engine room.

MECHANICS' FAIR. The Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association will open its magnificent fair in its new building on Huntington Avenue and West Newton street, opposite the Coliseum grounds, Boston, in a few days. When this is opened, there will be two extensive exhibitions in operation, on the same avenue, and the people will undoubtedly very generally go to both, and we trust a great amount of good will result from an inspection of such mammoth exhibitions.

THE RIGHT POLICY. The Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company is one of the best and most honorable institutions of that character to be found anywhere. A request to pay a return premium on a policy which expired in 1878 was lately made, the justice of the claim, old as it was, was promptly recognized, and the matter amicably settled.—Old Colony Memorial.

An attempt was made on Thursday morning last to wreck a train on the Bridgewater branch of the Old Colony Railroad. The facts are as follows:—The train was just rounding the curve about one mile and a quarter from East Bridgewater, where the road is down grade, when the engineer, George Duckworth, discovered a pile of ties laid parallel with the track, resting on two which were laid transversely across the rails. He immediately whistled down breaks, applied the air-brakes and reversed the engine. He was running about thirty miles an hour and about sixty-five pounds of air. His efforts, however, were not sufficient to stop the headway which the train had acquired coming down the grade, and it struck the obstruction sending the ties flying in every direction. The two ties which were laid across the rails were caught in the cow-catcher and carried along on the rails for some distance.

The engine was started with some difficulty when another obstruction about twenty rods from where the ties were placed was discovered. This was three large stones, weighing about 300 pounds apiece, rolled up from a culvert on to the track. The stones were rolled off and the danger averted.

Hardly had the train again got started when another object was discovered on the track about a quarter of a mile distant from where the stones were placed. The last obstruction consisted of two sleepers placed beside the rails in such a position that they would catch in the cow-catcher and throw the engine off the track. This danger was removed and the train proceeded to South Abington without further incident.

The prompt action of Duckworth the engineer, is the only thing that prevented a serious accident. He is about 65 years old; has run on the road about 34 years, and is considered one of the most careful and skilled engineers on the road. The train consisted of two passenger cars, containing about 150 passengers, mostly operatives in the pack and shoe factories at South Abington, who felt but slightly the shock of the collision. Officer George C. Pratt of the State police is at work upon the case.

A Haunted House. BOSTON, Aug. 24, 1881. DEAR PATRIOT:—

Wollaston boasts a haunted house. During the past two years the inhabitants of this house have been disturbed by a variety of noises, knocks, steps, etc., and have been deceived by luminous lights coming from the back door where someone was apparently seeking admittance, and finding no one there. The family do not believe in ghostly visitations, but being roused after visiting numerous rappings upon the back door, which was open, and after two valiant members of the family armed with Indian club and umbrella went down stairs to disarm the supposed burglar and found nothing.

Saug Harbor.

Sailors' Snug Harbor, more generally known as the Sailors' Home, situated at Germantown, Quincy, is one of the best institutions ever established. This Home is intended for aged and disabled sailors, there being at the present time about thirty in the home, having served from twenty to sixty-seven years of their lives on the ocean, several of them having been masters of as fine ships as ever sailed. We made our annual visit to Germantown last week, and inquiring for Mr. Oliver, the gentleman who has charge of the Hospital, and who is also always ready to welcome and entertain visitors, we found him attending to the hospital duties, although there was but one patient on the sick list, some time since visited by Mr. O. to take a look about the premises, and as he was not busy just then, he devoted an hour or so to showing us round. Mr. O. followed the seas fifty-seven years, and has been in nearly every port into which a vessel ever went; has been around the world several times, as master of first-class vessels. In looking about the premises we found everything in the best of order, neat and tidy, doing much credit to those in charge of the different departments. There is a beautiful flower garden, well kept, and in full bloom. Mr. W. Washburn, an old gentleman, over eighty years of age, who has devoted his time for many years to the cultivation of flowers. He has a nice arbor in the garden, well shaded with grape vines. On nearing him he kindly invited us to take a seat in the arbor and seemed very much pleased to see us, entertaining us with many interesting stories of his experience and observations during his sea life. He selects from every variety of flowers such as he wants for seed and bulbs for planting for another year, and the rest are gathered and made into bouquets, finding ready sale for them to visitors. Until two or three years ago visitors were not admitted there only one day in the week, but now the public are cordially invited to visit the Home every day in the year. Every one should feel an interest in this Home, as it is supported by private donations. The management of that institution are always pleased to have visitors call and see for themselves what a comfortable home has been built there for those who have worn themselves out in hard service on the deep. There have been three deaths in the Home the past year, one of the number being a man eighty-six years old. Last year when there were there had charge of the stable, and was smart, active, and in perfect health. He had followed the sea thirty-two years, and was well known to the best interest of what he had experienced. There is a very large farm belonging to the Home, under a good state of cultivation, sixty tons of English hay being cut on the farm this year.

By going to Quincy Point, opposite Saug Harbor, an old sailor is always ready to come across the river by giving signals, and take parties over and back for three cents each way. Al-most every one gives the kind and ob-liging sailor a few pennies extra for his promptness in attending to his duty. The visitors signal and take parties over three cents fare also. It takes but about five minutes to row across the river, and a great many trips are made daily from shore to shore, conveying visitors to and from the Home.—Weymouth Gazette.

ESTATE AT ANSON. The fine estate belonging to the late Captain Ansbury at Quincy Point is to be sold on Wednesday next. This property is quite valuable as it is pleasantly situated on the water and has many beautiful attractions. Any one desirous of securing a good bargain, should not fail to be present.

STEAMER STAMFORD. The home of the Pilgrims has become a great resort for summer parties, and the new going steamer Stamford was placed on this route. Large and select parties daily make modern pilgrimages; wandering amid the curiosities that have made the ancient town of Plymouth most famous. There is much to see and much to enjoy, and it gives us fresh courage for the future. We advise our readers to try the sail and they will be well satisfied.

FOUR GENERATIONS. The Cape Ann Bulletin says, "An incident of the last century during the war of 1812. A building of the new residence of Dr. A. S. Garland, in Gloucester, on Thursday last. Four generations of the same family being engaged at one time in laying the brick. The parties were Sheriff George Lane, his son, George R. Lane, his grandson, George R. Lane, Jr., and his great-grandson, Charles W. Lane, the ages of the parties being 69, 50, 31, and 7 years.

HINGHAM. The oldest person in Hingham is Mrs. Ensign Cushing, who is now ninety-six years and eleven months old. She delights in rehearsing the scenes and incidents of days gone by, and the pleasures connected therewith, also the distinguished personages who were during the war of 1812. She is a pensioner for services rendered by her husband during that eventful period of his life.

Resolved, That we demand that the telegraphs of the country be purchased and operated by the general government, and that the telegraph be a public utility, and that the daily news be publicly bulletined at every telegraph office, free of charge, in the interest of a broader dissemination of intelligence.

SEVEN MILLION PEOPLE. are interested in the United States fisheries, the annual product of which is worth about $100,000,000.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

Will you kindly allow me the use of your columns for the purpose of making a few inquiries of the Selectmen, who as public servants of the taxpayers, by whom they are elected, ought to have the town affairs so squarely transacted, that no proper request can be answered in as public a manner as these questions are asked:

Gentlemen of the Board of Selectmen: As my neighbors and myself are somewhat confused by the inconsistency existing between the published statements of your ideas on one subject, and the way law ought to be administered, and the real manner in which you have exercised your official prerogatives, we are therefore led to ask for light for we do not wish to misjudge. Will you explain to the citizens of Atlantic the difference between your present practice and your practicing." You will readily admit I suppose that the word correctly echoed your sentiments in that reported interview with the Herald correspondent of Aug. 12th; that "personal spite influenced Mr. Faxon's official acts to a large extent," hence his decision. You have in this case endeavored to place yourselves before the general public, as having a greater regard for the pure administration of justice than the papers have chronicled far and near. The honest citizen's application of the rights of citizens is not just at this time, we are completely bewildered, because we have witnessed you during the past few weeks frantically "straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel."

Gentlemen in behalf of my fellow citizens of Atlantic and for my own information, I may ask some questions of you, and you will please be so circumstantial. I hope you will pardon me.

An answer, perhaps, would clear up many doubts which we may have as regards your honesty of purpose. We only desire justice and fairness. There is a discrepancy somewhere, gentlemen, and we do not wish to think ill of you; so will you explain this matter to us? Some months ago the citizens of Atlantic, without regard to political creed, united in a petition asking that their property and persons might be protected by a patrol, and named Capt. Hunt as the officer of their choice. This petition was sent as I understand, to the aldermen of Boston, and by them referred to the mayor for the appointment of the Officer, while the city was to pay for such service. Yet that petition was pocketed by you and nothing done in compliance with our request.

We know of no cause for this action, and can think of none, other than personal spite between you and the man of our choice; or dislike for the citizens of this place by your board. You have ignored the wishes of both Democratic and Republican tax-payers. Mr. Faxon, as you say, lost his commission on account of "spite in his official acts." What right have you, more than a subordinate, to allow your personal spite or dislike to control in between the rights of Atlantic citizens and the rights of the city? If there is not a difference between Capt. Hunt and your board, or outside influence acting directly through you and against us, then there must be a difference between the Selectmen and this part of Quincy, otherwise our request expressed in that petition which is so proper and reasonable, would have met with gentlemanly recognition at your hands. Why you have even failed to treat us courteously, by informing us why our request could not be granted, we do not understand. Your personal affairs, gentlemen, should be settled outside of your official stations. If Atlantic citizens are to be the losers, you will please tell us why. As Selectmen, it ought to make no difference to you whether you like or dislike Capt. Hunt, so long as his record is clear and the citizens of Atlantic express in an unmistakable manner their preference for him, as their officer; neither on the other hand does it become you, simply because you do not like the citizens of this part of the town, to show your prejudice and refuse to appoint an officer to protect us; you may say in answer that it is not spite or anything of a kindred nature which influences you in the discharge of your duties as Selectmen, but you will please give us credit will you please give the Atlantic people a reason. We are not yet quite ready to accept to trust, certain dark floating rumors which are to the effect that "appointment of police" is exercised on the "star route principle," or under the influence of outside influences.

Then your injustice to the ladies of Atlantic must appear in a very dark light, even to yourselves, when you look calmly at your treatment of a petition signed by over one hundred and thirty of our ladies, which was addressed to the Aldermen of Boston, and as I am informed by him, referred to your Board for action. These ladies asked protection; they are subject at various times to the filthy, abusive language of drunken men who perambulate the streets of Atlantic, and who, as I am informed by him, referred to your Board for action. These ladies asked protection; they are subject at various times to the filthy, abusive language of drunken men who perambulate the streets of Atlantic, and who, as I am informed by him, referred to your Board for action. These ladies asked protection; they are subject at various times to the filthy, abusive language of drunken men who perambulate the streets of Atlantic, and who, as I am informed by him, referred to your Board for action.

Yea, gentlemen, you have even gone so far as to allow, if you have not licensed, one of the lowest of low groggeries just this side of the bridge. Yes, most honorable Selectmen, you deliberately permit Newport and the lowest type, to manufacture imbeciles, run-crazed and run-sensitized men, and then turn them out into our midst to do as they please; and when our wives and sisters, frightened at their insecurity on the street, or at home, pray, not for the regaining of a highway, nor for the building of a sewer, nor for the construction of a new town building, but simply for protection against this drunken horde, you are ungentlemanly enough to turn your backs.

I remain respectfully yours,
J. W. RICHARDSON.

To Lady Voters.

Every woman who is a citizen of Massachusetts twenty-one years of age and upwards, and can read the Constitution of the State in the English language, and can write, except paupers and persons under guardianship, who has lived in the state one year, is eligible in writing, to the Assessor's office, in writing, to the Assessor's office, which can be done satisfactorily to them by signing the following form, either at their office or by sending them a copy with name or names affixed:

The undersigned woman, residing in Quincy, on the first day of May, requests that you assess to a poll-tax for the current year, and we hereby declare we have no taxable property."

The poll-tax will be fifty cents. All that will be necessary to do after being assessed is to personally present your receipted tax-bill to the Selectman and be registered as a voter. The Selectmen will, no doubt, appoint a time for registering women, and give due notice. The time is usually the last day of February.

Women to be absent at that time may, if they so desire, take notice of women assessed a poll-tax last year, can vote this year on that receipted tax bill. If assessed a tax, the collector is in duty bound to collect it, if possible, whether you vote or not. You have a tax abated by poverty, for age, infirmity and request. Property taxpayers do not pay a poll-tax, but have to be registered by the Selectmen precisely the same.

Singular Occurrence.

Tuesday was a remarkable day as far as the sky was concerned. It was a day of singular occurrence. Some old Quincians say they never saw anything like it. The streets were lighted up in the middle of the day as though it was moonlight, and the most beautiful stream of gold played down upon us that was ever known. Sometimes it was light, sometimes silver, but of a golden color. The reflection upon vegetation produced most brilliant hues of green, which at times were almost dazzling to the eyes.

Why the phenomenon occurred no one can tell—all conjecture. Some said it was owing to a fog; others, smoke, occasioned by large fires in the woods; others the comet's tail passing between the earth and sun; others thought it might have been due to the removal of the President. The most plausible reason, and the one we think most probable is the mingling together of fog and sulphur vapor. The odor of sulphur could plainly be distinguished in the air and if the light should pass through this vapor it would probably give it a golden color.

Our printers were obliged to use their lamps at 2 o'clock, the book manufacturers stopped work in the middle of the afternoon. The stores and public places of business were obliged to resort to artificial light.

People supplied by the Boston Gas Light Company used 1,000,000 more feet of illuminating gas than they could have used on an ordinary day, and the extra quantity was consumed mainly between noon and 5 p. m.

Many became frightened and thought that the end was at hand. The odor of sulphur made the streets seem deserted to the many spectators, and their minds changed to wonder, if they were to be cleansed by sulphur baths, taught how to drink sulphuric acid and thus be washed and purified of all sin before they entered the bright heaven beyond. How great the faith of all was tested; even some Christians were wont to imagine vision like dreams.

The year 1881 has been without doubt an eventful one. Comets have been numerous, the shooting of the president, atmospheric phenomena, exposures of crime, etc. Others have the name of "Mother Ship" been mentioned, and in many slight, last Tuesday, were the perils of the life of our prophet, repeated.

Prayers for the President.

The deep and anxious interest felt by the American people in the President's case, and their ardent desire for his restoration, found another marked evidence in the general observance on the part of all classes of people of the hours set apart by Gov. Long on Thursday, for prayer for his recovery. That the proclamation by the Governor has been so warmly seconded is also evidence of an active faith in the efficacy of prayer. Throughout our State, and indeed throughout New England and many other States, thousands have been looking to God in earnest, and whatever the issue may be, the influence of the observance of the day can but be widely felt for good.

Impressive services were held in the churches in the city, and at Christ Church, there was quite a large congregation assembled at the Chapel, Rev. Samuel Kelley, D. M. Wilson, E. A. Ferry and Edward Norton took part in the exercises, which consisted of prayer and singing.

Mr. Sheridan Billings, son of Mr. Leonard Billings, read prayers at Christ Church, and there were quite a large number present. The stores and places of business generally were closed between the hours of ten and twelve, and the streets were a Sabbath stillness.

In the public schools the day was recognized by talks on the early life and public services of President Grant, showing his energy, perseverance and spiritiveness had placed him in the highest position in the gift of the people.

On the Road to Health.

The President was very successfully removed from Washington to Long Branch, on Tuesday last. A special train carried the invalid; leaving Washington at 6:45 a. m., arriving at the beach about 2 p. m. He has thus accomplished the trip which he set out on the second of July, and it is fervently hoped that in this case the old adage, "a bad beginning has a good ending," may be verified.

He bore the journey remarkably well but the next day so excessively hot, that he was very feeble; since the desirable change in the atmosphere, he has commenced to eat, and has taken his usual food.

Surgeon General Barnes, U. S. Surgeon Woodard, Dr. Reuben and Mrs. Dr. Wilson have been dismissed; leaving Drs. Bliss, Agnew and Hamilton, who are deemed sufficient. The President's appetite has returned and he now has a good food. He partook of solid food on Thursday and had a perfectly natural passage of the bowels, which indicated the proper assimilation of food.

FIREMAN'S PARADE. At the Engineers' meeting held on Tuesday evening last, a committee of one from each company met with the Engineers to make arrangements. The position of the several companies in the procession is as follows:—Vulture, 1; J. Q. Adams, 2; Granite, 3; W. M. French, 4; Granite, 4; L. W. Lovell, 5; Granite, 6; Tiger, 6; and Hook & Ladder, 7.

The engines will play as follows:—Vulture 1st, Granite 2d and Tiger 3d, which order is the same as the two preceding years.

The route of the procession will be made shorter than it was last year, and satisfactory arrangements are made that will carry the affair through in a successful manner.

Rev. Calvin Lincoln, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Hingham, was stricken with paralysis while attempting to commence the prayer for the recovery of the President at the church Thursday morning. He was taken home as soon as possible, where he remains in a very precarious condition.

RIVER THIEVES. Yachts lying in the Town River, owned by Messrs. Chubbuck, Fenno, Duggett and others have been raided this week, and ropes, anchors and other things to the value of $100 to $200 carried off. This is not the first act of this kind that has taken place recently, as the boat house of H. A. Keith has been twice visited this season by these contemptible thieves.

THE HARVARD REGISTER. Messrs. Macaulay, Parker & Co., of Boston, have presented us with a bound volume of "The Harvard Register," an illustrated monthly, published by Messrs. Kimball, of Cambridge. ## Adams Academy.

The tenth year of this institution opens on Wednesday the 14th instant at 9 o'clock. New pupils should present themselves for examination on the previous day. All graduates of the grammar schools and any Quincy boys who have the general standard of attainments will be cordially welcomed. The annual proceeds of the fund, after deducting the cost of repairs and warming, is applied to paying the tuition of those who stand highest in the school of study. The number of such scholars must vary with the income; but no good scholar need apprehend removal from the school from inability to defray its charges.

The record of the academy at Harvard College last year should be particularly gratifying to the citizens of Quincy. Mr. George P. Keith was the recipient of second-year honors in classics, and appeared in the world-renowned "Greek Play." Mr. Arthur Keith, after completing the course of the academy, was elected to a gratifying success, passed an exceptionally brilliant examination for admission; while Messrs. W. S. Plinkham and A. C. Sprague were equally distinguished at the preliminary examination.

Our fellow citizen, Mr. Josiah Quincy, Jr., has to the great regret of every one left his position in the academy to join the Harvard Law School. The master, however, has great pleasure in announcing as his successor Mr. W. C. Foster, of Harvard '78, for two years a very successful member of the staff at S. Mark's, Southport.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

J. White Belcher, clerk of the East Norfolk District Court, whose daily exercises are held in Quincy, gave recently a birthday party to a few friends at his summer cottage at Nantasket.

We find that the party was a very successful one, and the event in the Beach News.

The intellectual giant of Hobartville, alderman J. W. Belcher, who has been a resident of Quincy since the year of his arrival, and has been prominently foremost in furthering all undertakings for the improvement or elevation of its citizens was the object, celebrated his appointed birthday on Wednesday of last week in a manner becoming his official position.

The common fronting the mansion was brilliantly illuminated, and the guests of the party were treated to a most sumptuous and elegant repast.

The assembled multitude, gathered through the beautiful grounds until the arrival of the mayor, on whom devolved the duty of making the opening speech, which was a brilliant oratorical effort. In it he complimented the great alderman on the entire and successful career of the city, and closed by remarking that the motto of the distinguished gentleman would ever continue to live on and shine on in the annals of Hobartville, surrounded by the people of Quincy, and that the people of Quincy should be proud to have him as their mayor.

The Rev. H. R. Willard will preach at the Baptist Church next Sunday. The Ladies' Benevolent Society meet at the residence of Mrs. H. M. Fiedler Wednesday afternoon at half past two o'clock.

The Vultures go to the firemen's meeting at Quincy, Wednesday, and will be invited to the Conquerors of South Westmouth to go with them.

The steamer, Ellen Hancock, while trying to make the pier at Lovell's Grove to take on board a party of excursionists Thursday evening, was blown by the Point bridge and carried away a portion of the pier and netting; after having the pier the pilot or officer in charge, failed to steer aright and brought up against the Point bridge.

Following the advice of Mr. Marcus Wight, captain, and his officers, they finally got the boat headed for Boston. We should never trust our lives on board a boat managed in the reckless manner shown in this case.

AN ENTERTAINMENT. Our readers must not forget the entertainment which is to be given in the Town Hall, on Monday evening, the 12th inst. It is a very well known to many in this community, is a born humorist. One can hardly look at him without laughing, and his songs and personations are irresistibly funny. He will be assisted by Miss Mary A. Mayhew, who is a very good singer, and is a very attractive presence, and she will add very much to the interest of the entertainment. Miss Emily Esterbrook will read several scenes from the plays, and will be very well received in the many places where she has read. Miss Mary E. Shaw will preside at the piano. She is abundantly competent to execute a good solo, and is a most excellent accompanist. Master Freddie Hunt has a very pure soprano voice, and will astonish all who may hear him. He is a pupil of Miss Long's. Those who do not go to the entertainment will miss a treat.

NANTASKET BEACH. Wednesday being excessively hot, many of our citizens visited Nantasket beach to enjoy a sniff of salt air. Among the number were Charles H. Porter, Esq., with three children, Miss Dora French, Mrs. Lewis Bass with two grand-children, Miss Henrietta Marsh, Miss Nettie French with a lady friend and child, Mrs. Mary Curtis, Mrs. Blood and children, Mrs. Thomas J. Nightingale, Mrs. Geo. Newcomb, Mrs. J. Mayhew Marsh, Mrs. Christopher A. Spear, Mr. George W. Jones, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Brock, Mrs. Laura E. Metcalf with two children, and Rev. D. M. Wilson with wife and daughter.

CLOUDS OF FLYING ANTS. The people of Emerson, Manitoba, were recently startled by an unusual phenomenon in the shape of ants flying through the air from west to east, and extending for miles around. They were apparently ordinary black ants provided with wings. During the night myriads of these insects came to the earth, and the streets and sidewalks were black with them. The Red River was also covered with a coating of the ants an inch thick. It is supposed that the heavy storms have driven them this way. The atmosphere was exceedingly sultry, and the light was considerably impaired, so heavy were the clouds during the time in which the ants were passing over the town.

A New Orleans paper which vigorously advocates the building of a mill in Louisiana says "the little town of Fall River" made more money in 1877 by the manufacture of 140,000 bales of southern cotton than New Orleans made in the same year by handling 1,300,000 bales. The earnings of "the little manufacturing town" says our New Orleans contemporary, over and above the value of the raw material placed in the factories, was more than $12,000,000, while New Orleans gained only $8,500,000.

Mourning goods are scarce in the New York market because heartless speculators have been securing all the available stock in anticipation that the death of the president would enable them to make a corner and a big profit. It is a pity that the people are so graceless enough to speculate in such a scheme.

The Old Colby Railroad Company is building a massive piece of wall along a portion of the track in Fall River. It is nearly a third of a mile long, and is sixteen feet high and nine feet thick.

Dedication of Forester Hall.

The dedication of this new and handsome hall, at West Quincy, occurred on Thursday evening of last week and a large number of people were present to witness the ceremony. The opening address was delivered by Thomas J. Foley, Esq., Chief Ranger of St. Francis Court, No. 25, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, and was listened to very attentively by those present, after which Florence A. Lawler, Esq., of Boston, entertained the audience with an excellent address which was very interesting.

The hall was then cleared and soon the young ladies and their partners were gliding through the hall on the light fantastic toe, to the music of Elliott's Quadrille Band. After enjoying the music for several hours, supper was announced and soon the guests were seated at the tables, which were spread with a bountiful supply of good things. Before doing justice to the edibles, Dr. J. M. Sheahan of Quincy, was called upon and responded with a short address which was received with numerous encores, after which the wants of the inner man were attended to.

After supper dancing was continued until the wee small hours of the morning, when those present departed for their homes, not forgetting to return their thanks to the members of St. Francis Court, for the evening's entertainment.

Forester Hall is situated on Cemetery street, and was built by Mr. Jonas Shackley, and without doubt is one of the best constructed buildings in town. The inside of the building is finished with the best of hard pine, and decorated with moldings.

Foundered at Sea.

We gave our readers last week a short notice of the shipwreck of Daniel Higgins of Quincy, captain of the American bark Brunswick, which foundered in a gale off the coast of Georgia. The bark was owned largely by Mr. Walton Hall of Quincy, and was valued at $15,000. She left Philadelphia on Tuesday, Aug. 25d, she experienced a heavy gale which continued for many days, and on Saturday the 27th, at 9 p. m. the bark sank beneath the raging billows, leaving the Captain and crew clinging to the afterhouse, which was floated. The men were without water or provisions of any kind and on this frame were buffeted about for three days. When taken off by the pilot boat they were pretty well exhausted, and very weak. Previous to the abandonment of the bark, four of the men were washed overboard and drowned. Capt. Higgins' account of the shipwreck is as follows:—

kindly word, how sweet it is To the heart bowed down with pain;
Perhaps by that low whispered word,
A soul for heaven you gain.

"Tis only a trifle," some will say,
A smile or a kindly word,
but many are yet in the world to-day Whose deepest pulse has been stirred into something nobler and better, Than their life's eye yet had known,
By a few words whispered to them
In a quiet earnest tone.

TELLING A LOVE STORY.

"It is provoking," Mrs. Gayland said.
"I have a letter here asking me to provide lilies of 14 and 16—"

"Provoking!" said Miss Whitman, when you are wishing so much for a tutation for Agnes."

Hear me out. The situation is arousing; my correspondent writes that the house is all that the heart could desire, the pupils amiable, the house
under the control of the house-keeper,
and the father, a widower, who is now in the continent. And a condition is attached, to wit: that the governess ust be middle aged."

"And Agnes is twenty—"

"So you see, she will not do."

"Suppose I go!" cried Miss Whitman.

"You!" cried Mrs. Gayland.

"Yes, I'm thirty-five, and look forward—"

"But what will become of me?"

"Give my place to Miss Keyse, and evance the other teachers, giving the st place to Agnes."

"I will not have objections. I want change, and when those young ladies come to require a governess, if you ant me, I will return to you."

"I thought you were happy here, Ella," Mrs. Gayland said, reproachful-ly.

"I am; I have always been. But I want to see a glimpse of life elsewhere, can never forget my youth's kindness to me; and yet I want a change.
I would recommend me for the situation."

"If I must, I must. But promise me to return here if you are not happy
at Mr. Elkenton's."

"I promise."

*****

"I wonder what she will look like,"
Jelly Elkenton said to her sister Lilly.
"We shall know very soon," said Lilly, gently, "the carriage is turning back to the road."

"I hope she won't be cross," Nelly said, but she pouted. "Here she is!"

It was only natural that the girls should scrutinize the lady who alighted from the vehicle which had been to meet the train. She was tall, with a all, commanding figure, a noble face,
all of intellect and refinement, and
with brown eyes so full of tenderness,
and a smile meaning that her pupils already met her with hearts already ready to give her a loving welcome.

"We are Lilly and Ella Elkenton," Lilly said with courtesy. "This is Lilly and I am Ella—but everybody calls me Nelly."

Miss Whitman replied pleasantly, tossing her pupils, and seemingly deeply moved by their cordial welcome.
The old house-keeper, Mrs. Short, was in the hall, and a cry rose to her lips
as he came forward. But Miss Whitman reeted her as a stranger, and she drew back muttering, "Well, well! if that is my dear thing!" I never saw two people so near alike!"

Walter Elkenton remained abashed, and Ella was mistress of his splendid ome, instructress of his daughters,
who gave her almost worshipping love.

It was marvellous to see how she eemed to grow younger, in her new ome. Her great beauty was of a type that does not fade early, and in the pure ir color her glow brightened, her eyes grew all and luminous, and she had ever a happy light in them, more beautiful han their old serenity.

For many years they had nursed under the same roof, so full of tenderness of sorrow overcome, of a life battle where the victory was won by sheer truggle; but all sadness left the noble eal at Moss Hill, as Mr. Elkenton alled his place, and the peace brought them to happiness.

Three years after the June day when he sisters watched for the arrival of their governess, the happy trio were assembled after tea, chatting in the light. In October, Ella was to lose e of her pupils. Lilly was to be er agent to enter society, and Nelly
ould remain still two years at Moss Hill.

"Tell us a story," Nelly said, sitting on the porch step, leaning back against a pillar; "A love story, please, Miss Ella."

"A love story? Let me think! Once upon a time—"

Lilly laughed musically.

"It ought to be a fairy story if it isn't," Nelly said, looking at her sister.
"No; it's a love story," said Ella,
but she did not smile. "Once upon a

There was a very rich man who had married a magnificent estate. He had married late in life and lost his wife when he had only one child, a daughter who he idolized, soon after their marriage. She was beautiful, and she was very much loved by her father and mother. For years he sent himself up in his splendid home, seeing no one, living the life of a hermit. But his sister died, and he left him the care of a boy thirteen years of age. When the father died, the mother of the wife he loved so dearly, and in memory, also died, leaving a girl of ten, utterly friendless and unloved. The two children went to live in their new home on the same day, and the father and mother, who were both dying with half a heart, he threw off a great measure his reserve and melancholy, to make their home pleasant to them.

"What were your children's names?" asked the girl.

"I can christen them."

"Well, papa has the prettiest name in the world—Lilly. You may name the girl—Lilly. I call the boy Walter." "I will name the girl after you," said Lilly. "So they are Walter and Lilly."

And the light became stronger the girls had noticed a sudden pallor on the face of their governess, but her face was steady as she continued. "Not of the three had seen a tall figure in the garden at some distance from them, and enter the house by the low back windows at the back of the house. Neither did they see cross the room and seat himself before the lace curtains in the darkness near the group he could have touched of the trio by stretching out his hand."

Walter and Ella, then, since you name them," said Miss Whitman, "I have a life of complete happiness in my luxurious home. Their uncle is very kind and generous, and I feel no sorrow was their separation and school life, as they passed from home to school to the seminary."

It was after their final return home that their uncle told them of his wish to marry the girl who had been the same and home together. Ella asked no greater happiness than to become Walter's wife, and for a time before that he loved her; but as she was older, became convinced that she was not Walter's wife, as he said, and she was jealous of the daughter of an old friend, who came often to them.

As we are commencing our names to be close at hand, we will name her as Lilly. She was beautiful—tall as Ella was, not quite so full of music and books, but a fairly-blond, winsome and tender—the woman to win a man's heart and that it in silent bonds stronger than a man's love."

"Walter loved her."

"And Ella loved her," sighed Lilly.

"Beforehand knew of any cross to plans he died. But in his will left property to his nephew and ward, upon condition of their marriage, either refused the marriage, the money went to a public charity, the money to be sold and the proceeds added the sum. But if either died, he inherited all. It was a cruel will, every day it became more evident to Ella that her heart was given to one to found the gift a heavy burden. To seal his avowal, Walter tried to tell her of his love to the woman he loved like himself. She loved him so well that grief became hers, and she would die to free him. But she realized death could release him, so she refused."

"Oh!" gasped Nell.

"She wrote a letter bidding him farewell and left the house. There was a boat in which she often roved on the river alone. This was found, and went upside down, and her hat floated near it. Her father advertised for her, but she never came back, and after a year the law gave him sole control of her property. It ought to be his, for Ella was not related to the man, although she called him uncle and loved him tenderly."

"Did he marry Lilly?"

"Oh, yes, they were married."

"But poor Ella!" sighed Lilly.

"She did not die," said Miss Whitman. "She shrank from the crime of suicide. So, while they were hunting for her body, she was in a large town, enjoying a comfortable living. She continued to write to her mother, and had a tranquil, happy and useful life."

The sisters went to their own apartment, while the governess went into the drawing-room to get a book she had left there. As she lighted the gas, a figure rose from a seat near the window and came forward. He spoke a word only.

"Ella!"

And she staggered back and would have fallen if his strong arm had not caught her.

"Ella," he said again, "I heard your name hidden there, to see my children, when they knew of my return home. Oh, you were wrong. I always knew, but your own doubts made you so, so that I thought you would marry me in obedience to my uncle's law."

"You did not love Lilly?" she said.

"I loved you—only. But when I believed you dead, her sweet consolation was what was left of my sorrow."

There was a rustling greeting for a moment, the next morning, but the death of the girls was increased when said to them, very gravely: "I will write the story your governess began last evening. Walter's wife died, but found Ella and loved her. She is free, and you must give her a place in your hearts, as my wife, and your mother."

Oysters are ripe this month.

The "Old Mechanics' Fair."

The opening of the Mechanics' fair in the new building of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association on Huntington Avenue, Boston, on Tuesday, was an interesting event to every New Englander. For over half a century this association has been a power in the development of New England industries which can be hardly overestimated, its successive fairs having brought together her mechanics, and made them familiar with each other's achievements, and thus created a friendly rivalry which has stimulated the inventive genius of our people to its utmost power.

The structure just completed by the association has been built with a view to affording the best and most ample accommodations for the friendly displays of the manufacturers of New England, together with generous conveniences for illustrating the advance made in all the arts and sciences. The structure may be described as three great buildings forming one group, but separated by brick walls and fire-proof doors. The whole has a frontage of 598 feet on Huntington Avenue, and of about 317 on West Newton and Gloucester streets. The building has two vast halls, an amply lighted basement under the entire structure, and numerous smaller apartments, making a floor space of all over six and two-fifths acres.

It is a matter of public congratulation to know that the coming exhibition, the 14th that has been given by the association, will fully maintain the reputation of former fairs for novelty and general excellence. The mechanical exhibits include fully as large a number of novelties as usual, and the practical working of new devices will be more generally illustrated than in former years.

While so much has been done to make the exhibition an attractive resort for all New England, an equal degree of thoughtfulness has been shown by the association in planning for the comfort and convenience of visitors outside the city limits. All who desire to attend the exhibition will find ample lavatories, where the dust of travel can be removed, as well as bundle rooms, where all parcels, overcoats, wraps and other annoying hindrances to indoor comfort can be deposited and cared for. A spacious restaurant is also located in the building, and here the best food will be promptly served at the most reasonable rates. Dissect communication can be had with every railroad station in Boston, the line of horse cars landing passengers at the main entrance on Huntington Avenue.

DECEASED. The venerable Rev. Calvin Lincoln of Hingham, who was stricken with paralysis on Thursday last week in the church at that place, died on Sunday. His funeral took place at the First Unitarian Church on Main street Tuesday afternoon. The old meeting-house was filled to overflowing with the members of the society and the citizens of the town, who came to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of their deceased pastor and friend. A large number of clergymen from abroad were present.

Prominent among those in the audience were Governor John D. Long. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. The remains were encased in an elegant casket, with a silver plate bearing the inscription, "Calvin Lincoln; died Sept. 11, 1881." The services were conducted by Rev. E. A. Horton of Boston. Rev. Pitt Dillingham offered prayer, and after Beethoven's funeral march had been rendered by the choir, Rev. Mr. Horton then delivered a panegyric on the life and character of the deceased, and was followed by short addresses by Rev. E. C. Hood and Rev. H. Miles both of Hingham. The remains were interred in the Hingham cemetery.

A WHITE MOUNTAIN STAGE ROBBERY. The stage from the Mountain House, Jackson, while returning from the Glen House about 3 o'clock on Tuesday, was attacked by three highwaymen. Among the passengers was a Mr. Andrews of Boston, who was robbed of $300 and a gold watch.

Items from Hough's Neck.

Owing to the bad weather, the hop at the Willow House last Saturday evening was very poorly attended. Those who were present, however, enjoyed the vocal and instrumental concert given in the parlor by the band. The weather permitting, another hop will be held Saturday of this week, when we hope the gathering will be large.

Misses Nettie L. Ricker, George V. Johnstone and Bertha S. Pillsbury of Boston were guests of H. B. Ellis and family at Willow Cottage Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. L. O. Woodward of Winthrop, also spent a few days with them last week. Mr. Amos T. Poole, of Wyoming Valley, Pa., an uncle of Mr. Ellis, is visiting him this week, after an absence of nine years from his native state.

Mr. J. C. Bates and family, who have been spending the summer at one of the twin cottages, returned to their home in Hyde Park, Monday.

One day last week a young man from an adjoining town drove to Hough's Neck to see a young lady stopping at one of the cottages. Leaving his horse to graze near the cottage, he and the young lady went for a stroll on the beach. Mollie, the horse, having tired of the sea breeze, started for home. Calling at the town pump for a drink she was captured and lodged in a stable. After some inquiry her master found her and took her back to the cottage. Young men don't forget to be friendly rivalry which has stimulated the inventive genius of our people to its utmost power.

- The brick chimney at Packard's ink works has been extended upwards thirty feet, which will probably be a benefit to the company and a blessing to the inhabitants in that vicinity. We have often heard complaints made by those living near by. The ladies on washing days have frequently been annoyed and perplexed by the black smoke and soot that lodged on the damp clothes, hung out to dry. The air for several hundred feet from the chimney, on certain days, was disagreeable and sickening.
- Through all the week weeks of suffering and pain to the human kind, our citizens have eagerly waited for the official bulletins and they had become so familiar with the scenes of that sick room, that they felt as if they stood by the bedside of one of their own family.
- And now, at the closing scene on earth, in respect to the human kind, Monday, in accordance with the proclamations issued by President Arthur and Governor Long, will be a day generally observed. The schools, libraries, banks, book factories, granite works, stores, printing offices and all the places of business will be closed. Services will be held in some of the churches.
- A PUBLIC OBSERVANCE. In another column appears the proclamation of Governor Long, designating Monday next, the day upon which the remains of the late President will be to be buried at Cleveland, as "a day of public mourning for the great dead," of mourning for the great dead, of sympathy for his widow, his children and his aged mother; yet also of gratitude for his noble life, and of inspiration, springing from his example, for the manhood of the future.
- A FAY JOE. We should judge by the progress made in finishing the Craney Library building that the workmen were receiving a dollar an hour, and that they desired the job to hold out as long as possible. It appears plausible that the building may be completed, and the grounds laid out, by the first day of June next.
- ACCIDENT. We noticed in a Boston daily that "John McPherson of Quincy, Mass., employed on the new Episcopal Church now building at Portsmouth, N. H., fell from a staging on Wednesday, and sustained dangerous spinal injuries."
- The international cotton exposition, at Atlanta, Georgia, will open on October 5, and continue until December 1st. Tickets for the round trip from Boston are issued for $44, good for thirty days.

THE SAD END.

At 10:35 P. M., on Monday night, President James A. Garfield breathed his last at Elberon, Long Branch, N. J. After eighty days of patient suffering, the minutest details of which have been brought before nearly every citizen of this country and Europe, a most eventful career is closed. It has been the earnest desire of all, even his strongest political enemies, that life might be spared to him; but no, the assassin's bullet has proved fatal, and our President goes to an untimely grave. His life has often been written, and how this self-made man worked his way from the tow-path to the highest office in the gift of our people is well known. How, from an excellent scholar he became a brave soldier and fearless statesman.

The result of the autopsy on Tuesday proved that the bullet had perforated the spine, and that death was inevitable from the first.

Early Wednesday morning the residents of Long Branch were allowed to view the remains, which, later, by a special train, were conveyed to Washington by a special train. On reaching Washington the body laid in state in the Capitol until Friday, when, by a special train, it will be conveyed to Cleveland, and there lie in state during Sunday. The funeral will take place on Monday, when the remains will be interred in Lake View Cemetery, in that city.

THE PRESIDENT. The autopsy is the most marvelous feature in the President's case. It shows that the surgeons had but little knowledge of the character of the wound or the location of the ball. What was called the track of the wound was, in fact, a burrowing pus cavity. The ball, which Dr. Hamilton even thought he could locate with in half an inch, proved to be a mere ball of pus waisted up. The metal which the indolent bacteria discovered was the same accumulation of pus. The doctors all knew within an inch where the ball was, and could have reached it immediately with a knife, yet it was far away from the spot where they thought it was, and behind the heart instead of in front of the groin. The ball never went downward and forward. It went sideways across the backbone. The shattered rib, which was not known to the consulting surgeon until July 23, was the obstacle which deflected the bullet, and caused it to locate where no one even suggested that it was, and where it remained a permanent danger to the heart. The doctors, however, congratulate themselves that the lung was not seriously affected, that there was no metastatic abscess. The case illustrated how great the skill of good nursing is, for it shows that the President was kept alive for eighty days solely by good nursing, while he had a mortal wound that was constantly poisoning the system. But the autopsy shows how far surgery is from being an exact science and how greatly the most eminent surgeons may err; plainly spoken, that the doctors knew very little about the wound or the course of the ball.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF SORROW. The annual parade of the Fire Department of Quincy, which have been taken place this afternoon, has been postponed for one week, on account of the death of the President. Flags are flying at half mast and many of the public buildings, stores and some private residences are hung with emblems of mourning. On Tuesday, at morning, at noon and at night the bells of the solemn dirge, and the thoughts and feelings of all, went to that stricken household, whose grief and sorrow the whole nation are in sympathy with.

Through all the week weeks of suffering and pain to the human kind, our citizens have eagerly waited for the official bulletins and they had become so familiar with the scenes of that sick room, that they felt as if they stood by the bedside of one of their own family.

And now, at the closing scene on earth, in respect to the human kind, Monday, in accordance with the proclamations issued by President Arthur and Governor Long, will be a day generally observed. The case illustrated how great the skill of good nursing is, for it shows that the President was kept alive for eighty days solely by good nursing, while he had a mortal wound that was constantly poisoning the system. But the autopsy shows how far surgery is from being an exact science and how greatly the most eminent surgeons may err; plainly spoken, that the doctors knew very little about the wound or the course of the ball.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF SORROW. The annual parade of the Fire Department of Quincy, which have been taken place this afternoon, has been postponed for one week, on account of the death of the President. Flags are flying at half mast and many of the public buildings, stores and some private residences are hung with emblems of mourning. On Tuesday, at morning, at noon and at night the bells of the solemn dirge, and the thoughts and feelings of all, went to that stricken household, whose grief and sorrow the whole nation are in sympathy with.

Through all the week weeks of suffering and pain to the human kind, our citizens have eagerly waited for the official bulletins and they had become so familiar with the scenes of that sick room, that they felt as if they stood by the bedside of one of their own family.

And now, at the closing scene on earth, in respect to the human kind, Monday, in accordance with the proclamations issued by President Arthur and Governor Long, will be a day generally observed. The schools, libraries, banks, book factories, granite works, stores, printing offices and all the places of business will be closed. Services will be held in some of the churches.

A PUBLIC OBSERVANCE. In another column appears the proclamation of Governor Long, designating Monday next, the day upon which the remains of the late President will be to be buried at Cleveland, as "a day of public mourning for the great dead," of mourning for the great dead, of sympathy for his widow, his children and his aged mother; yet also of gratitude for his noble life, and of inspiration, springing from his example, for the manhood of the future.

A FAY JOE. We should judge by the progress made in finishing the Craney Library building that the workmen were receiving a dollar an hour, and that they desired the job to hold out as long as possible. It appears plausible that the building may be completed, and the grounds laid out, by the first day of June next.

The enormous sum of $30,000,000 is now on the sea en route to this country to pay for wheat. But that will not pay for the crop of Dakota alone.

By an unintentional error the Vulture was ranked seventh at the Millford muster; it should have been sixth.

The pump in the Washington school yard has been fastened up to prevent any but scholars from procuring water there; when the School Committee think of how many teamsters and others have been accommodated at this spot, and how many dirty horses have been refreshed there, it would seem as though some arrangement might be made by the committee to continue to supply them, if possible; perhaps it might be done by deepening the well.

The bell on the C. U. Church was tolled at 7:45 o'clock on Tuesday morning, to announce the death of President Garfield; the news filled the people of the Point with sorrow, and everywhere expressions of regret were frequent and heartfelt.

Republican Caucus.

The caucus of the Republicans of Quincy, on Monday evening, was attended by less than a hundred voters. Delegates were chosen to the various conventions, who were favorable to the re-nomination of Hon. John D. Long for Governor, and David W. Tucker for Senator. The following delegates were elected:

State Convention.—Charles H. Porter, Theophilus King, Jr., Edwin B. Pratt, James Edwards, Charles R. Sherman, Herbert M. Federhen.

Congressional Convention.—Joseph M. Gilson, Warren W. Adams, Charles A. Howland, Frederick A. Chaffin, John H. Gilbert, Jessie F. Curtis.

Seaboard Convention.—J. Marsh, Elias A. Perkins, Washington M. French, John O. Holden, Rufus Foster, Charles H. Porter.

County Convention.—John Q. A. Field, George F. Pinkham, Theophilus King, Jr., William L. Faxon, James E. Tirrell, James Edwards.

A Town Committee of twenty was then elected, as follows:—Warren W. Adams, Charles A. Howland, George I. Gill, Washington M. French, C. A. Spear, Edward A. Spear, P. H. Gavin, G. H. Field, John Jacobs, Harry Luce, Charles L. Orne, Henry Graham, Elias H. Perkins, A. S. Sawtelle, Jr., W. C. Seelye, A. G. Olney, George F. Pinkham, George B. Pray, Joseph W. Hayden, T. H. Newcomb.

The business was speedily and quietly transacted. Singularly enough Henry H. Faxon, Esq., was not present until after the delegates were elected.

At the regular shoot of the Merry Mount Shooting Club held on Saturday last, the following score was made:

Thrust of the sword. 18 out of 20 John Curtis, 2d. 16 out of 20 Myron Clark, 14 out of 20 Edward Hardwick, 12 out of 20 Chas. L. Prescott, 11 out of 20 Albert Keating, 11 out of 20

The gold prizes which the club has been shooting for during the past three months have been won by Thomas Curtis in the first class and Myron Clark in the second class.

SUPERIOR COURT. In the Superior Court at Dedham on Thursday were commenced the trials of a number of our citizens, who were found guilty before the District Court of selling intoxicating liquors. Patrick S. McDonnell, the new foreman of the horse company, was found guilty on the first indictment and fined $50 and costs. On the second indictment he was also found guilty and fined $50 and costs, and 30 days in the House of Correction, where he is now engaged, in his spare moments, in writing the new by-laws for the company.

Fabian Miller's case was also tried, and the jury had returned a sealed verdict, the purport of which we have not learned.

FREE TICKETS. An event of more than ordinary interest is the announcement of the well known Continental Clothing House of Boston, in our columns to-day, of free tickets from Boston, given to purchasers residing on the railroads mentioned within twenty-five and fifty miles of Boston. In these days of low fares to some of the great Western cities, it is cheering to note the enterprise which prompts the proprietors of the Continental to offer our citizens such unparalleled inducements to visit Boston.

The Continental Clothing House is the largest wholesale and retail clothing establishment in New England, and buyers from our town now have an opportunity seldom offered to visit Boston, and to make a most comfortable and complete stock of its kind in New England.

SHIPPING. Arrived at Southern's wharf, August 23, the schooner J. Wainio, with 80,000 feet of spruce and 100,000 lbs. of B. Johnson.

Sept. 16th, Schooner J. Warren, with 80,000 feet spruce frame for the Catholic parsonage; also pickets and shingles, for B. Johnson.

A Proclamation by Gov. Long.

President Garfield is dead. It is announced that his funeral will be on Monday next, the twenty-sixth day of September, current. I therefore ask the people of the Commonwealth to make that a sacred day, and to keep it accordingly.

A day of public consecration to Almighty God; a mourning for the great dead; of sympathy with his widow, his children and his aged mother; yet also of gratitude for his noble life, and of inspiration, springing from his example for the manhood of the future.

I trust, too, that on the intervening Sabbath all our churches will commemorate the man and his event.

Dr. William S. Pattee.

For thirty years a prominent and respected citizen of Quincy, died at his residence in that town on Monday, aged 57 years and 8 months. Dr. Pattee was born in Bath, Me., Jan. 8, 1824, and was educated in the public schools of that city. He subsequently began the study of medicine and took a medical course at Harvard, graduating with honor in 1851. At that time he removed to Quincy and entered upon the practice of his profession, which he kept up until within a short time prior to his death. Dr. Pattee was a life-long democrat of the old school. He was a member of the Chatham convention, which nominated Breckinridge for the presidency. During his residence in Quincy he held many offices of trust, which his fellow citizens were pleased to tender him. For many years he was a member of the Quincy school board, and for twenty years he was an efficient chairman of the democratic town committee. For ten years in succession he was the democratic candidate for councillor in the second councillor district, but his party being in the minority there, he was never elected. Dr.

Pattee was an ardent student of history, and as a member of the Massachusetts

Historical society, and a contributor to the Historical-Genealogical Register, he was well known and beloved by hundreds. He was particularly interested in everything that pertained to the history of the ancient town of Quincy, and to his indefatigable labors in unearthing the rich stores it contained, the public are indebted for much that has been published concerning it. At the time of his death he had partially completed what promised to be a very interesting and valuable work entitled, "Old Landmarks in the Town of Quincy." He was also the author of the excellent "History of the Town of Quincy." Dr. Pattee leaves a widow, nee Appleton, and two children, one an unmarried daughter, the other Mr. William S. A. Pattee, a promising young lawyer of Boston.

In Memoriam.

There are events which, in their suddenness and the great loss which they inflict upon us, so overwhelm us that we are, for a time, incapable of giving expression to our feelings or of doing what our calmer feelings would impel us to do. Such is the death of our dear friend, Mrs. Mary T. Dewing, who for so many years has gone in and out among us. In her home she was the central figure, the wise counsellor, the faithful wife. In her chosen vocation, the successful teacher and worthy example for her pupils to follow, and so large was her influence that there were few families in the community who do not feel her loss. But to us her influence was more sensibly felt, in connection with the Ladies' Social Aid Society, of the M. E. Church, of which she had been president since its first organization. Constant in attendance, and diligent about participating in the ordinary duties of the church, which she was a member on probation.

Resolved, that in the death of our president, Mrs. Mary T. Dewing, we each and all feel a personal bereavement; a sundering of one of the links in which make this life worth the living; and the addition of one more to those at the beautiful gate "who are waiting and watching for me."

Resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathies to our bereaved friend, Mr. Dewing, in his great loss. Also to those near and dear relatives who have been bereaved by the death of our friend.

Resolved, that the above be printed in the QUINCY PATRIOT, spread upon the records, and a copy be sent to Mr. Dewing.

"She being dead, yet speaketh."

DEATH OF A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Mr. Samuel Downer, senior member of the Downer-Kennedy Oil Company, and owner and proprietor of Downer Landing and Melville Garden, died at his home on Pleasant street, Dorchester Tuesday last, of pneumonia, after suffering from diabetes for a long time, but his death was caused by contracting a cold while at Downer Landing in August, which was followed by an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Downer became identified with the mineral oil business in 1877, but in about two years the manufacture of oils from coal began, and he became an active worker in this branch of the business. Mr. Downer was 74 years old, and was born in the same house in which he passed his last hours. Deceased leaves a widow and five daughters, all the daughters being married, and most of them living at home.

Civil Service Reform.

The two fundamental features of the reformed civil service will be, first, appointment to office through accelerated fitness, by the method of competitive examination; secondly, the retention of office during good behavior of the incumbent. The adoption of either of these as rules governing the civil service in the routine appointments, would constitute a great improvement over the present system, which, notwithstanding occasional splendid exceptions, is at something better, is essentially a system of patronage and favoritism.

But in order to the attainment of the nearest approach to perfection in civil administration, both features of the reform policy are necessary. Of course no system is, or can be, perfect. All forms of administration are merely human contrivances to effect certain ends, and are, therefore, subject to the infirmities resulting from human error and human weakness. But it may be justly contended that the policy advocated is far better than the system which it is intended to displace, and that if it is indeed not free from some well grounded objections, it is yet, on all grounds of public interest, so superior to the reigning spoils system as to deserve the hearty support of every patriotic citizen.

Nor can it be pretended that the reformed system is something resting mainly on theoretical and as yet unproved advantages. Nothing could be more inconsistent with the truth than the assertion so frequently in the mouths of apologists for the spoils system, that civil service reform means the loss of the old and the gain of the new, civil administration, or that it is an attempt to establish an ideal system without slender support in the lessons of experience. On the contrary, the reformed system has long been tried by other nations, and its principles vindicated by the achievement of the very best results.

Indeed in our own country, the earlier and better practice was in near conformity to what is now demanded as "civil service reform," which means in truth a return to that better usage of the fathers of the republic, with such changes only as modern experience has shown to be both feasible and salutary. A report recently issued by the Canadian civil service commission brings clearly into view the manifold advantages which the system of competitive examination necessarily possesses as a mode of appointment over the old system of patronage. In Canada, as in this country, the abuses inseparably connected with a patronage system have attracted the public attention, and the appointment of a commission with authority to investigate the whole subject of the public service, and report to the Dominion parliament, was the consequence.

This commission has just made its first and principal report, and it is safe to say that a weightier document in the interest of civil service reform has never issued from the public press. The report with its accompanying evidence makes an octavo volume of more than 500 pages, and contains the clearest evidence, if any were needed, of the inherent and manifest superiority of a "merit system" over any system of appointments as dictated by favoritism and patronage. And what makes the conclusions of the commissioners (strongly in favor, be it remembered, of the principles of civil service reform) most persuasive, is the fact that the evidence in their support is directly drawn from the testimony of old and tried public servants of the highest character.

The experience of Great Britain in dealing with this subject it is hardly necessary to refer to. It is recognized in all sides that the English civil service is one of great excellence, and that the successive changes of the administration of the government involve no disturbance in the departments of public business. Since 1855 the competitive examination system has there been on trial, and with results that challenge wonder and admiration. In Great Britain no place holder trembles lest the ministry of Lord Salisbury should succeed that of Gladstone, and in all the struggles of party warfare, in all the great collisions of principles and policies, the routine business of the department goes on the "even tenor of its way," without displacement of faithful public servants, and therefore without the resulting detriment to the public interest which such displacement must necessarily involve.

Thinking men noting these "points of vantage" in the British system are led to inferences connecting the high standard in character of men in public life in the United Kingdom, with the freedom which their system happily gives them, from the demoralizing pursuits and tendencies necessarily belonging to a spoils system such as prevails in the United States. The name of "politician" has grown to be with us an epithet of degradation from which an honorable man must shrink as from that which defiles; and that it is so the spoils system, more than any other cause is answerable.

Deaths.

In Quincy, Sept. 19th, Dr. William S. Pattee, aged 57 years and 8 months.

In Boston, Sept. 22d, Miss Emily V. L. Smith, daughter of Mr. Charles M. G. Smith of Quincy, aged 38 years.

In Quincy, Mass., Aug. 27, Captain Robert Erwell, aged 79 years, 2 months and 16 days.

Capt. Erwell was born in Gloucester, Mass., June 10th, 1802. He followed the sea as a profession until the last twenty years of his life. Since then he has kept up his acquaintance with the sea by his early activities in acting occasionally as a pilot. As he grew older he spent much of his time at home. He has left a large family of children and grandchildren to mourn his loss—nine of them being still living.

He remained on earth for a time sufficient to see them all grow up and mainly settled for life. Some of his children emigrated to the far west, and were not with us to see him pass away. Death entered his family Jan. 27th, 1876, and took away a beloved son, and one year ago another passed away, and now he has gone to join his wife and sons in that home where there is no parting. His funeral obsequies were presided over by Rev. Mr. Kelley, of Quincy. He leaves a wife, four friends in Quincy, also a large circle of friends, who unite in the feeling that he is only gone before to wait for them on the other side.

"Capt. Erwell was known in life the relationship of uncle to John W. Day of 'Banner of Light' was a prominent and earnest of his early activities in the cause of New England seamen which is now so rapidly passing away. Having discharged with the rugged fidelity, peculiar to his order, the duties of the present state of being, he has now passed to the brighter domain of 'the better country.'—W. D.]

Memorial Service.

A memorial service was held on Monday afternoon at the Unitarian Church in this town. With the exception of that chosen resting place in a cemetery in Cleveland, it is the only one of any more fitting spot could be selected among all those where President Garfield was remembered, than the historic Unitarian Church at Quincy. There above the graves and beneath the canopy of the two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams—as well as the devoted partners of their lives, there was a peculiar meaning in the honor to President Garfield. The church was draped and decorated with suggestive beauty. The hosts and tablets on either side of the pulpit were encircled with garlands of lily; the broad, crimson canopy between was shaded with the emblems of mourning; a fine chapel of lotus roses and white lilies, in its center, statues, vases, and a large number stood upon the platform, while single roses, wild asters, purple-day lilies and climbing ferns adorned the pulpit and the columns of the venerable house.

A large congregation, including the members of the Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., were present. At 2:30 the exercises were opened with Scripture reading by the Rev. Edward Norton, and prayer was offered by the Rev. S. Kelley. The pastor, Rev. Dr. M. Wilson, said:

In the city by the lake he loved, and near the home that was so dear to him, the funeral obsequies of our late President are being celebrated. At this hour the remains are being conveyed to the tomb in the earth, ashes to dust, while the spirit that was so true to its ideal, so lovable, so courageous in war, so wise in council, is with God who gave it.

Our hearts lie buried in the dust with him so true to his ideal, so lovable, so courageous in war, so wise in council, is with God who gave it.

Yet every murmuring voice is still, as, bowing to Thy sovereign will, our best loved we surrender.

His mournful death, while serving the people in his high office, summons us not to grief alone, nor alone to the contemplation of his character. It summons us also to a strict consideration of the dark import of his death. Such an event is a call to the nation to consider its ways. It is a rebuke and a warning by the God of nations. It portends a storm to be prepared for or avoided.

The mariner on the high seas, when he feels the first heavy breath of the storm, can determine his position with respect to it and shape the course of his vessel so as to avoid its full force. This way lies the center of the whirlwind dark and terrible; this way lies the outermost circle of the storm. Such an intimation to us is the assassination of our Chief Magistrate. To continue on in a certain course leads to destruction; to turn to another course a safe and prosperous voyage.

Every consideration of prudence and economy and duty, we are urged to amend our social life where amendment is needed, and to correct every error in our institutions, our customs, our laws. The land is troubled because a perverted aim came in contact with a perverted passage in politics. For the man and the politics this generation of the American people and its antecedents are responsible. Shall we permit the sentiments of the hour to be dissipated in mere words, or shall we make them solid in reforms? This is the practical question for which the emergency of the times demands an answer.

Thou shalt King, Esq., said we are witnesses to a strange spectacle to-day. The thoughts of all centre in the life of one man. Why this tribute to President Garfield? It is because of a revelation which has been made of that man to men, so that he has passed from a full-orbed and shining star to a dimly shining star, and has such an exhibition of character been given for our benefit. Away back in the days of youth we find that he was the embodiment of energy and devotion to duty. It was on that foundation that he built. James A. Garfield as he stands before us at this time, is grander in character than in anything he has achieved. In the life of that man we find a fullness which a perfection and a fullness which the Father has never unveiled to us.

Dr. William Everett spoke as follows: It is not hard for any speaker to find topics to say before any audience to-day. Gen. Garfield was so complete, and had fulfilled so much, that one speaker after another could illustrate the topics of his life without exhausting it. In his entire career he was so completely a product of the United States, and yet he is recognized in every country as a king among men. Those who knew him in the civil war love to think of him as the highest type of the citizen-soldier. That other great class—the politicians of every name, those who feel, and always will feel, that the central interests of this country for the present and for all time, are concerned with its government, delight to find in Gen. Garfield the real statesman, the man who, accepting party government as the condition of national existence in a republic, and holding true to his party, had yet the courage and the skill to lift his party and his nation above blind faction and false tradition into the freer and purer air of living conservatism and practical reform. Those who belong to the great band that is fighting infidelity will rejoice that this man who is mourned by all was their champion. The speaker said that the view of Garfield that most inspired him was the fact that Garfield was patient and untrusting in equipping his mind for the duties that lay before him; he was a student, a reader, a classical scholar. Whatever General Garfield had to do he studied—studied in books, studied it in the recorded experience of other times and other nations. He did not consider himself properly equipped to grapple with any great national question till he had read all that books had to tell him about it, and so equipped he did not hesitate, resting on the stores of his broad and deep learning to defy the narrow, hot-headed views of those politicians and their constituents who are determined to know nothing but the present hour and the present spot. He was a college-bred man with a classical education which inferior men think it grand to scoff at as unpractical, but which great men like Garfield, like his predecessors, know to be before every national foe. He would have this education against every obstacle—he encountered.

erred the sternest poverty to learn in a community which is only too ready to forgive the absence of any education. He would go to Hiram College in the very verge of independent manhood, though he had to work like a mule to pay for even that slender training. He would go on and have a thorough New England education at that grand college among the Berkshire hills, where he was the contemporary of your honored friend, my lamented predecessor, Dr. Dimmock. Although he could not complete his course until he was twenty-five, and left college in debt to an amount that was to him a fortune, the gratitude of Hiram College chose him Professor and President. Williams early enrolled him as one of his students, and the taste for study he never abandoned him; in camp and in council he was still the reader, the student, the scholar. What a lesson there is for the young men who are impatient of any study that will not yield five dollars! Garfield knuckled under no public life trained with a college education is a double man.

Doubtless at twenty-five years of his contemporaries thought they had five years and more the start of him. Where was he at thirty, at forty, at fifty? His ambition, his sweetness, his industry, and perhaps his eloquence might have been the same without his education. But there is the same difference between the uneducated and the educated James Garfield that there is between the slow moving snail on which he used painfully to plod in his youth along the Ohio Canal, and the train which forced into it every element of nature to speed on its wings of lightning his mangled and mangled body, which we fondly hoped would restore him.

His college career was a joy to him. He loved old Williams. The shot that took him from us was fired just as he was about to start for Williamstown. He left to Williams the most precious legacy he could leave, his two darling boys. In that honored roll of more than a century, where shine with wealth and gentle lustre the names of Nathan Hale and Samuel Mills, of Enos Washburn and James H. Colt, of Josiah Dewey and Mark Hopkins, Williams College will cherish with deepest reverence for the comfort of her fathers and the encouragement of her sons the name of James Abram Garfield.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson in a fine closing remark said that while an action relative to building a new one.

Our citizens will be pleased to know that the G. A. R. boys are making preparations for another course of lectures and entertainments this fall and winter. Judging from the success of last year's course we anticipate one fully as good for this year.

A very large crowd were attracted to the square and streets, to witness the grand and gorgeous display made by Batcheller & Doris' circus Thursday morning. During the performances the best of order was maintained and those connected with it were very polite and gentlemanly.

The Selection of Quincy very wisely and with much forethought ordered the numerous liquor saloons in this town to be closed on Monday, and they very unanimously and creditably obeyed the order, and our streets were quiet and orderly, and we believe that not a single arrest was made. Something unusual on public days.

The annual parade of the Fire Department of Quincy will take place this evening at eight o'clock. It is a very fine and well-attended affair. For the man and the politics this generation of the American people and its antecedents are responsible. Shall we permit the sentiments of the hour to be dissipated in mere words, or shall we make them solid in reforms? This is the practical question for which the emergency of the times demands an answer.

Garfield the real statesman, the man who, accepting party government as the condition of national existence in a republic, and holding true to his party, had yet the courage and the skill to lift his party and his nation above blind faction and false tradition into the freer and purer air of living conservatism and practical reform. Those who belong to the great band that is fighting infidelity will rejoice that this man who is mourned by all was their champion. The speaker said that the view of Garfield that most inspired him was the fact that Garfield was patient and untrusting in equipping his mind for the duties that lay before him; he was a student, a reader, a classical scholar. Whatever General Garfield had to do he studied—studied in books, studied it in the recorded experience of other times and other nations. He did not consider himself properly equipped to grapple with any great national question till he had read all that books had to tell him about it, and so equipped he did not hesitate, resting on the stores of his broad and deep learning to defy the narrow, hot-headed views of those politicians and their constituents who are determined to know nothing but the present hour and the present spot. He was a college-bred man with a classical education which inferior men think it grand to scoff at as unpractical, but which great men like Garfield, like his predecessors, know to be before every national foe. He would have this education against every obstacle—he encountered.

Dr. William Everett spoke as follows: It is not hard for any speaker to find topics to say before any audience to-day. Gen. Garfield was so complete, and had fulfilled so much, that one speaker after another could illustrate the topics of his life without exhausting it. In his entire career he was so completely a product of the United States, and yet he is recognized in every country as a king among men. Those who knew him in the civil war love to think of him as the highest type of the citizen-soldier. That other great class—the politicians of every name, those who feel, and always will feel, that the central interests of this country for the present and for all time, are concerned with its government, delight to find in Gen. Garfield the real statesman, the man who, accepting party government as the condition of national existence in a republic, and holding true to his party, had yet the courage and the skill to lift his party and his nation above blind faction and false tradition into the freer and purer air of living conservatism and practical reform.
